Soviets Renew Attack on Japs In Korea

BORDER CRISIS HEIGHTENED BY RED INVASION

Dispatches Tells Of Blows At Four Points By Russian Troops, Tanks, Planes.

AIM AT RAIL STATIONS

Japan Claims Soviets Entrench Well Within Boundaries Of Manchoukuo.

(By International News Service)

TOKYO—Marshal Vassily Bluecher's Red army of the east, striking at four points on the Siberian frontier with infantry, tanks, artillery, and airplanes, today brought the Russo-Japanese border struggle to its most explosive stage in two weeks of undeclared war.

Diplomacy, which both Moscow and Tokyo hoped would peacefully end the conflict, was blasted out of the picture with two fresh alleged invasions of Japanese-controlled territory.

Soviet airplanes, backing up Moscow's demand for a Japanese retreat, raided Kozan and the railway settlements of Koje and Shikai in northern Korea. The railroad stations, however, were not hit, said an army bulletin.

Dig Trenches Near Village.

Carrying the war farther north, the war office officially charged, a party of Soviet troops yesterday crossed the Manchoukuo border and began to dig trenches near the Manchoukuo village of Mankienshang, 12 miles south of Suifenho.

More than 110 tanks and squadrons of airplanes were thrown into the violent action on two nearby fronts at Changkufeng and Shaotsoaping hills, just above the Korean border.

Two battalions of infantry and 60 tanks deployed below Changkufeng, and a second force of one battalion and 50 tanks went into action below Shaotsoaping hill.

Two Soviet airplanes were shot down by anti-aircraft guns, the war office said.

Attack Follows Barrage.

Artillery opened the conflict, quickly followed by furious tank and infantry onslaughts. Storming the heights, the Soviet infantry advanced to within 220 yards of the Japanese positions, but they were dispersed and their guns silenced.

The Soviet attacking air force was composed of three scout, three pursuit, and 13 heavy bombing planes, which heavily bombed Japanese positions.

Japanese planes, it was asserted here, remained on the ground.

At the same time, the Japanese version of the diplomatic "peace" conversations carried on in Moscow confirmed that the Soviets' terms were nothing short of complete Japanese capitulation.

Japan proposed immediate cessation of hostilities, to be followed by border negotiations. But Russia insisted that Japan withdraw beyond the border as defined in the Russo-Chinese treaty of 1886, a line which is disputed by the Japanese.

Ruling Seen As Boost for School Bonds

Says Voter Need Not Vote Party Ticket In Order to Ballot for Issue.

Secretary of State William J. Kennedy today handed down a ruling which backers of the Mansfield school building program predicted would boost the chances of the board of education's proposed $550,000 bond issue at next Tuesday's election.

The ruling, given in response to a request of The News-Journal, states that a voter need not reveal his political affiliation or vote a party ticket in order to vote on the school bond issue or relief levies next Tuesday.

"I expect that ruling to be of considerable help to the school bond proposal, since there are a number of voters who might stay away from the polls rather than state their politics election day," W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, said today

Mut Give Affiliation.

Electors who vote a party ticket are required to list their political affiliation with precinct officials for tabulation purposes.

However, the school bond issue and the city and township relief levies as well, constitute a special election, Kennedy ruled, at which no declaration of party affiliation is necessary.

The secretary of state's ruling said: "An elector has the right to attend a special election which is held on the same date as the day of the primary election and ask for a ballot on a bond issue, tax levy, or any other question or issue and vote same. He is under no obligation to state his party affiliation nor to ask for or to vote a party column ballot."

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and county election board officials said they would comply with the state ruling next Tuesday, but were unable to state how votes would be tabulated without use of party ballot books.

Prosecutor Marriott and A. F. Porter, clerk of the election board, conferred this morning with James Welker, of the secretary of state's office, but obtained no information as to how they can

NO PROTEST

Gas Company Fails To Appeal Rates As Deadline Nears.

With no protest in sight and the deadline for filing an appeal only a few hours away, it appeared today that the city gas ordinance continuing present rates, would go into the statute books without a contest.

The 60-day period allowed the Ohio Fuel Gas company for filing an appeal with the state utilities commission from the ordinance passed by city council June 7, expires tomorrow.

Dispatches from Columbus said no appeal had been filed yet today.

The measure renewing present rates was passed after the gas company sought to increase the current charge of $1 for the first 500 cubic feet and 50 cents per thousand for all over that.

Pin Hopes On Levy As Court Rejects Relief Transfer

City officials today placed their sole hope of solving their relief problem in their proposed two-mill relief levy to be voted on Tuesday, after Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston turned down their request for a transfer of $50,000 from a special sinking fund to the relief fund.

In a six-page opinion, Judge Huston refused to grant the city authority to make the transfer, asserting that "the court has no jurisdiction over these funds, because the law provides they must be held for payment of bonded indebtedness as long as the city has an outstanding indebtedness."

He pointed out that the city's total bonded debt is more than $600,000 and that any excess sinking funds must be transferred to the general bond fund for the payment of debts.

"When all bonds payable out of the general bond fund are retired, then any unexpended balance may be transferred to such fund as the council may request," the opinion said.

Bear Brought Down After Seige of Terror

A female grizzly bear that broke from a steel-barred cage in Pittsburgh's Highland park zoo and spread terror for five hours through an adjoining residential district is pictured shot dead. Seen kneeling above the body are Zoo Superintendent Arnold J. Schauman, who pumped four rifle shots into the animal as it charged at him from a pedestrian tunnel in the park. With him is Police Lieutenant William E. Bruce, left, who joined the hunt.

600 MARCH FOR SCHOOL BONDS

Youngsters Show Interest In Issue That Comes Up For Vote Tuesday.

Six hundred youngsters, sweltering, but determined and enthusiastic, marched over Mansfield streets yesterday afternoon to show their interest in the $550,000 school bond issue which comes before the voters next Tuesday.

The two prizes were won by Johns park playground and Newman-Liberty park playground. Johns park had the largest representation, 142 children in line, and were taken to the Madison theater immediately after the parade for a free movie. Liberty park won honors—ice cream bars for every youngster, a treat from Axtells dairy—for the most original display in the parade.

Liberty, which also was second largest with 103 children in line, had a miniature old school house which was labeled, "1890," and there were cowboys and an old mule drawing a wagon. On the wagon was the slogan "Transportation has changed — why not schools?"

An interesting feature of Johns park unit was a goat drawing an old covered wagon, with a "Bond issue or Bust" on it.

Carpenter playground had the prettiest display, with a contingent of bicycle riders and all bikes wound with red, whote and blue paper. A little girl, dressed as a queen, rode on a throne in a little red wagon.

There were several carts and ponies in the line; Hedges displayed a dilapidated car with this legend: "Our school today looks

Ex-Home Run King Weak After Giving Transfusion to Daughter.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Babe Ruth's 22-year-old adopted daughter, Julie, was doing "very nicely" in the hospital today, but the one-time home-run king himself was too weak—for probably the first time on record—to sign autographs.

Ruth was donor of a 500 cubic centimeter blood transfusion for his daughter yesterday. A motorcycle police escort rushed with him from Ebbetts field, where he coaches the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team, to the hospital. The daughter underwent an operation a week ago for a glandular condition in the neck.

LOSES FIGHT

Pneumonia Fatal To Youth Who Broke His Neck.

MASSILLON — (U.P.) — Joseph Nelson, 17-year-old high school athlete, whom medical science tried to save from death from a broken neck by means of a unique neck-stretching device, today lost his fight for life.

Young Nelson, son of a prominent Massillon manufacturer died today in Massillon City hospital after bronchial pneumonia had developed.

The boy was under an oxygen tent rushed here during the night from Cleveland when death came. The tent had been ordered by Dr. Walter G. Stern, Cleveland orthopedist who prescribed the neck-stretching treatment.

RENEW SEARCH

AND HE GOLFS AGAIN TODAY!

Winner Of Marathon And Wager Joins Regular Foursome—This Time For Fun.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Douglas Corrigan had a rival today for nonstop honors in J. Smith Ferebee, 31-year-old Chicago broker.

But while Doug doesn't stop when he gets in the air, Ferebee doesn't stop when he gets on a golf course.

Ferebee is the chap who yesterday won full ownership in a $30,000 Virginia plantation, $2,500 in wages and nationwide attention by playing 144 holes of golf in 15 hours between sun-up and sundown on the four championship courses at the Olympia Fields Country club.

As if that weren't enough golf for one week-end, Ferebee announced today he would join his regular Saturday foursome for his usual 18 holes.

According to the terms of the wager which led to the golf marathon, Ferebee had to complete each 18 holes in 95 or fewer strokes. He actually completed the 144 holes with a total of 687, an average of better than 86 strokes per 18.

The unusual bet had its inception in a dispute Ferebee had with Fred Turek, also a broker, over operation of the Virginia estate they owned jointly. Although they couldn't agree on management of the plantation, they were loathe to take the matter to court. One day Ferebee happened to say he could cover each of the four Olympia courses twice in one day.

Eventually, the boast led to Turek's suggestion they wager the plantation on the outcome of such an attempt.

BIG DAY OVER, CORRIGAN STILL HUNTING A JOB

Turns Down Fabulous Offers, Insists He Only Wants To Work At Flying.

ANGERED OVER BEER AD

Chest Injured In Jostling By Crowd at Welcome, But He Makes Light Of It.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Douglas Corrigan, a weary and battered hero, spurned a dozen fortunes today and decided to remain just another young man in search of a flying job.

Offers were accumulating by the hour for him to exhibit himself on a stage or talk over the radio at prices of $12,000 to $20,000; to become a movie actor for even larger sums, to write stories of his life and endorse products he doesn't use.

Angered Over Beer Ad.

But Corrigan shook his head, demanded with a trace of Irish anger to know who used his picture in a beer advertisement without permission, and said he'd just wait until somebody offered him a steady job.

It will have to be a flying job, he said, and if it wasn't forthcoming soon (he had only $15 when he landed his $900 airplane in Dublin after an ocean flight July 18) he would pick out a few products to endorse for profit, but they would be only those he actually used on his flight.

He had to have an X-ray made today to determine how badly the cartilage in his chest had been torn by the shoving around he took at yesterday's wild celebration in his honor.

He Can Fly Again.

His most cheering news today was contained in a telegram from Dennis Mulligan, head of the bureau of air commerce, at Washington, announcing that his five-day suspension for flying across the ocean without permission had expired and he could fly again anytime he wanted.

Dr. Willard Ellsworth examined Corrigan's chest after a press conference today and said there was "nothing serious" wrong.

Worley is survived by his wife and three children including a son, Henry jr., secretary-manager of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce.

SECURITY BOARD QUESTIONS PLEAS TO OHIO'S AGED

Threatens Withdrawal of Federal Aid If Politics Has Been Injected Into Administration; Kentucky Marches To Polls Today.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The social security board today ordered a hearing to determine whether Ohio has violated federal law through political appeals to old age assistance recipients to support Gov. Martin L. Davey for re-election in the Democratic primary next Tuesday.

The social security board action came as the senate campaign expenditures committee watched today's Kentucky primary election closely for evidence which will determine whether the winning candidate's right to sit in the senate will be challenged.

Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer made public two letters sent to old age assistance recipients in which Davey was lauded as a friend of the aged, and a "leader in any project designed to secure more aid for the state's aged."

He also made public a photocopy of a letter signed by Davey in which the governor personally asked for primary support and said "during the three and a half years of my service as governor, I have tried to be your friend and to protect your interests in the full spirit of the old age pension law."

Board officials said the hearing probably will be held next week and that Ohio may be deprived of federal old age assistance if the board decides politics has been injected into administration of the law.

Letter to Berrodin.

In a letter to Henry J. Berrodin, chief of Ohio's division for the aged, Altmeyer said that:

"It is essential to the efficient administration of state assistance plans operating under the social security act that no attempt be made by public assistance officials and employes to influence recipients of such assistance in the exercise of their right to vote.

"On the basis of these letters (by Davey and Berrodin) it seems self-evident that the division of aid for the aged has attempted to influence recipients of old age assistance for political ends contrary to the purposes of the social security act and of the laws of Ohio relating to the administration of old age assistance.

"Other information in the possession of the board indicates that there are serious deficiencies in the administration of old age assistance in Ohio."

The Berrodin letter, written on department of public welfare stationery, was the same size and length as the old age pension checks with which officials said it was mailed.

Ohio Candidates Bore In, Punch Wildly as Campaigns End

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Like prizefighters in the last round of a championship bout, Ohio's primary candidates threw caution to the winds today and bored in at their opponents, throwing wild verbal haymakers and an occasional foul.

In Celina, Governor Davey lashed out at Judge H. A. Miller, who has been on the Mercer county bench for 24 years. He denounced the jurist for a statement that the chief executive "is the worst Ohio governor since I first voted in 1880."

Davey called the judge's statemen "just plain lousy" and added his opponent, Charles Sawyer, of Cincinnati, "must have bought or loaned money to the local newspapers which printed it."

Sawyer left Cleveland for Toledo with stops scheduled at Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky and Findlay this morning. At Cleveland the Cincinnati lawyer charged that Davey is prepared to spend $250,000 to "buy" the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and that he has already spent the same amount for literature and stamps.

Cox Backs Sawyer, Demands Purge of Davey Administration

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—A Democratic party purge of Gov. Martin L. Davey's administration was recommended today by former Gov. James M. Cox, who endorsed Charles Sawyer for the party nomination in Tuesday's primary election.

"If we fail at the primary, the electorate will attend to the job in November," asserted Cox, a nationally prominent political figure and the Democratic presidential candidate in 1920.

The Dayton publisher outlined his views in a letter to Hugh L. Nichols, Sawyer's campaign manager Cox's action was further evidence of the rupture among Democratic leaders which has marked the bitter fight of Sawyer and Davey for the gubernatorial nomination.

"I would be false to every sense of gratitude to the Democratic party in Ohio if I did not say that it faces a crisis in its own affairs and an almost unprecedented challenge to its fidelity to clean government," Cox declared.

Referring generally to variety of charges leveled against the Davey administration, Cox said,

450,000 March To Kentucky Polls In New Deal Test

(By International News Service)

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — An estimated 450,000 Kentucky Democrats voted today in a primary election in which the battle between Senator Alben W. Barkley and Gov. A. B. ("Happy") Chandler for the United States senatorial nomination overshadowed all other contests.

Barkley, senate majority leader, ran with the full endorsement of President Roosevelt and based his claim for renomination on his record as a New Deal senator

Governor Chandler, while asserting his friendship and admiration for Mr. Roosevelt, has opposed some administration policies. During his campaign he more than once attacked Barkley for running "on someone's coat tails"

Partisan feeling ran high throughout the state, and every precaution was taken to prevent any recurrence of violence of the sort that broke out in Jackson Thursday night when former Sheriff Lee Combs, a Chandler supporter, was shot and killed in what

Sales Crusade Does It's Bit — Jobs Await 50

C. of C. Calls for College Boys to 'Sell' Drive to Housewives.

An immediate result of the Sales Mean Jobs crusade in Mansfield is work for 50 college boys, home on vacation and with nothing to do this summer.

An appeal for 50 young men went out from the Chamber of Commerce, headquarters of the crusade, this morning. Their work will be to "sell" the crusade to the women of Mansfield.

A crew of 50 will start out Tuesday morning to cover the city: to meet every housewife at her own home and explain to her the workings of the crusade, and how jobs will come out of sales and more jobs mean a return of prosperity.

Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, which with the Retail Merchants, are co-sponsors of the campaign, said today that most of the preliminary work for the crusade had been done with men's groups, and that starting next week attention will be centered on women, who are the greatest buying factor.

College boys who are interested in the proposition will call at the Chamber of Commerce Monday morning, Williams said.

Another means of enlisting the interest of women will be the milk bottle collars that will go into every home next week, each tag carrying a list of 50 household items as reminders of what may be needed in the home.

Two special days, a home appliances day on Wednesday, and a home furnishing day on Saturday, are also intended to interest women shoppers.

Tuesday morning employers and sales people who are championing the cause of the crusade will gather at the Mansfield-Leland hotel for breakfast at 7:45. This will be the pep meeting of the second week of the campaign, Williams said.

WANTED—50 young college men who are at home during vacation and who have thus far failed to find employment. Work pleasant, affords opportunity of gaining business experience. BOARD RECITES FACTS ON BONDS

Reminds Voters U. S. Will Pay $44,000 of Proposed $98,000 Issue.

GALION — Stressing the fact that Galion needs a new East school building, the board of education in an article today point out the following facts.

The cost of the proposed East school building will be $98,182. Of this total amount, the federal government has granted to the city of Galion $44,182 or the equivalent of 45 per cent. This project necessitates a bond issue of $54,000 to be passed by the voters of Galion at the Aug. 9 primaries. This $54,000 is the difference between the grant and the total cost of the building.

The bonds for this project will run for a period of 10 years. They will be paid off at the rate of $5,400 per year plus interest. The interest rate cannot by law be more than 4 per cent, but the board of education expects to sell these bonds at a lower rate.

The county auditor has certified to the board of education that the bond issue of $54,000 will necessitate an average of only .7 of a mill over this period of 10 years. The financial records show that this will not be a decided increase because by 1940 the levy for the present bonded indebtedness will decrease materially.

If the people of Galion are to secure an elementary building at approximately one-half the actual cost, it will be necessary that 65 per cent of the people vote favorably.

SUES ELECTION BOARD IN FIGHT TO CAST BALLOT

CCC Enrollee Claims County as Home, Asks Injunction Against Vote Order.

ASHLAND— A case without prescedent in Ashland county, in which a resident of the county seeks to have common pleas court issue an injunction against the election board to assure him the right to vote in the coming primaries has been filed here.

The plaintiff, John Miehs, a CCC clerk at the Camp Mohican in Hanover township, in his petition names Frank Kunkel, chairman of the county board of elections, and F. M. Scarborough, Louise DeVoe and Louise Welsh, other members of the board as the defendants.

Claims County As Home.

A clerk of the camp, and a resident of Ashland county since Oct. 28, 1935, Miehs claims he came to this county to make his home, and that outside of the domicile which he has adopted inside the camp, there is no other place in the United States which he can rightfully call "home."

He claims in his petition that the county board of election, through Kunkel, has issued an order prohibiting any person employed by the CCC camp from voting in Ashland county.

It is also claimed that the board, through its chairman, will give orders to the presiding judges of voting precincts in Hanover township on Aug. 6 to prohibit any employes of the CCC camp from voting in the coming primary.

Mieh's petition seeks to have the court countermand this order.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

OLD HICKORY

WE HAVE a large, old shagbark hickory tree, about the center of a 16-acre field. Its shade is marvelous. I feel more comfortable, while sitting beneath those spreading branches, than in an air-conditioned room.

The leaves are dark, hardy green, and do not wither, even in these hot, dry, August days. The top soil is parched and hard; the stems of grass and weeds have folded up their leaves and stand gaunt and bare; but this giant tree has tapped a reservoir of moisture that surface plants have never known.

When I look upon its noble symmetry, the topmost branches climing skyward, the lower ones grown outward, bearing on their terminals, next year's buds and this season's crop of leaves and fruit, I marvel at its beauty and its usefulness.

Yet, if I could see beneath the soil, I would find a splendid system of roots, branching down and outward in graceful curves, just like the top. Perhaps the farthest root would reach a depth greater than the top is high, the lateral system wider than the spreading branches.

Everyday, in hottest sunshine and summer wind, that hickory tree takes from the earth no less than 150 gallons of water, and the sun and wind evaporate it from the thousands of openings in each leaf. With slight figuring, one can estimate that the tree carries 1,250 pounds of water to an average height of 30 feet.

When I take shelter there from the sun, I think about this miracle of power, and wonder how it happens. It makes me feel that trees, wherever found, as well as common grass and flowers, are the most uncommon things we have about us.

TWO WORLDS + + +

READ THIS FIRST

Determined to show Dr. Julian Paige, the man she is in love with, that she can make her own way in the world, Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, burns her bridges behind her, moves to a rooming house and, for lack of anything better, obtains a job as a taxi dancer which she feels will be only temporary. She is living with a girl named Laurie Evans whom she met in the park. Noel feels she has a dangerous rival in Ruth Chester, Julian's pretty nurse, who has been antagonistic. Noel is alarmed when one of the men with whom she dances at the Peacock seems to recognize her and almost discloses her identity to Nick Luigi, the proprietor.

CHAPTER 9

So once again the two girls started out. Noel was going to answer an ad for a mother's helper, which she realized in her ignorance, that a mother's helper might mean doing anything from heavy laundry work to cooking, neither of which she had the slightest knowledge. But when she got there, the place was filled. And she had the same luck with the other jobs. There just wasn't any chance there seemed.

At 6 o'clock she went to the De Luxe, and took a seat by the plate glass window facing the Medical Arts. Maybe she would see Julian and maybe not.

In a few minutes she saw him leaving the building. Ruth Chester was with him. They walked along side by side, smiling at each other as if they were sharing a delightful secret.

After seeing Julian and Ruth Chester walking gaily down Madison street, Noel didn't feel hungry any more. She managed to swallow some coffee, but hardly touched the sandwich she had ordered.

When she started home, a dismal rain was falling. So Noel had to run most of the way. When she reached the room, her clothes were dampened as well as her spirits.

"Noel, why don't you wait until the rain was over?" Laurie scolded her tenderly.

Right away Laurie began taking off Noel's coat, shaking it, and placing it on a hanger. Then she made her slip into a bath robe, while she made her a cup of tea into which she placed a slice of lemon.

"You think of everything, don't you?" Noel said, already feeling some of the tightness in her throat begining to dissolve. The tea was hot and very good. When Noel had finished it, she looked about her from the hard wooden rocker in which Laurie had placed a pillow. "What have you been doing?"

* * *

Laurie had the curtains down and had them soaking in the bathroom. The windows had been washed, the front one facing Court street, and the other one on the side which faced a tall brick building, which cut off all the light from that direction.

And actually Laurie had been down on her knees and had scrubbed the floor and the woodwork around the faded rug. "I'll get to the rug the next day the sun shines," she said.

"What will you do to it?" Noel said looking at the faded Axminster with distaste.

"I'll get a brush and some hot soap suds. You'll be surprised how it'll look. It probably hasn't been cleaned, or even dusted since—since King Tut wore short pants."

Noel laughed. Then her expression grew serious. "You didn't get a job, and neither did I. I don't believe there are any in the whole world."

"Of course there are jobs. We'll run one down before long," Laurie assured her in a hopeful voice.

But the next day came and passed exactly as the one before. Both girls came home in the late afternoon discouraged. Laurie's brown eyes were not only discouraged, but they looked sad. Noel had noticed several times before hat often, when Laurie was offguard, an expression of sadness would creep into her face. Noel somehow didn't believe it was altogether because they needed to find work so very much. There was some other reason why Laurie often felt sad. But she couldn't ask her about it. Too much like prying.

* * *

A little past 6 Noel was called to the telephone. She hadn't given Julian her street address, but he had insisted on having her telephone number. He was calling her now, wanted her to meet him at the De Luxe for dinner.

Noel's feet fairly had wings as she walked to the cafe. Julian was already there, sitting at a table, glancing over a paper when she arrived.

He explained as soon as she was seated at the table that he had been called to a New Orleans hospital on a case, and didn't know how long he'd be gone. "And so I wanted to see you before leaving," he finished.

You won't be gone too long, will you?" Noel asked in a voice that was not quite steady.

"Not a minute longer than I can help," he told her with a smile. Then he said, "I hate leaving you, Noel, because I've still got you on my conscience. You're a very stubborn little girl not to go back where you belong."

"I wish you'd stop worrying about me," she said throatily. "I assure you that I'm—I'm perfectly all right. And I'll keep on being that way."

"But will you? How can I feel assured of that?" Julian asked, his dark eyes troubled.

Noel tried to meet his eyes with a smile. Then she said, hating herself for the deception. "You see, I have a—the job."

Julian's expression lightened. "Well, that is better." He took it for granted that she meant the governess place she had mentioned before. "At least I can be sure you are where you'll be protected, and kept out of mischief," he finished with a smile. Then he began questioning her rather closely. "Is the work hard? The child easy to manage? The hours—not too long?"

"Pul-lease, one at a time," Noel evaded. Then she murmured something about the hours being very pleasant, and the work easy enough. Then she changed the subject. "Is Ruth going with you to New Orleans?" She simply had to know, though of course she should not have asked.

Julian shook his head. "If I need her, I may send for her later. She's invaluable to me in certain cases."

"Yes, I know," Noel murmured. She was thinking to herself half-angrily and half-laughingly, "She has no earthly right to be so pretty and so darned efficient, too."

It was almost as if Julian read her thoughts for he said, with his nice whimsical smile, "She's really the most capable and dependable nurse in town. It's just purely accidental that she happens to be pretty too."

"Oh, you've noticed that, have you?" Noel derided.

Julian gave a boyish laugh. "Ruth Chester looks upon me just as impersonally as I do her. You may be sure of that."

Noel lifted her brows ironically. Did Julian actually believe that?

Then Julian smiled and said something that made her heart quicken. "You need never worry about another woman's beauty, my dear. None can compare with yours."

"Yes, yes, go on," she teased, her voice a little shaky. Then she said in a low voice. "But I happen to know that mere beauty is the cheapest commodity on the market today. So that—puts us right back where we started, doesn't it?"

Julian smiled enigmatically at that. A few minutes later they said goodby.

Two hours later Noel was dancing at the Peacock.

Several days passed and nothing had changed. But Noel could see that she herself was changing. Studying her face one morning in the mirror of the cheap dresser with its drawers which were forever getting stuck and refusing to be opened, Noel saw that her face was thinner, which made her blue eyes look larger, even a little hollow. It was necessary for her to use a great deal more rouge at night now when she dressed for dancing at the Peacock.

* * *

But the work wasn't so hard there as it had been, for Noel had become accustomed to dancing with all kinds of different partners. There were not any more scenes like the one with the strangely determined red-haired young man, but Noel was still conscious of Luigi's ever watchful eyes. And every night it seemed as if the place grew more hateful to her.

She and Laurie were having their troubles also at the rooming house. For the rent was overdue, and Mrs. Blarsom had reminded them of it in curt, demanding tones.

Noel had looked at her in stricken silence. As usual, it was Laurie who took charge of the situation. "We haven't the money today, Mrs. Blarsom," she said placatingly, "but we—hope to have it soon."

"You see, I—have a—the job."

"Do you think I can pay MY rent with hopes?" the woman exclaimed angrily.

"But we'll pay you—honestly we will," Laurie insisted.

"Promises don't pay bills either," the woman returned. But she left saying that she would give them until the day after tomorrow to get the money.

Noel looked at Laurie, who said with a slow emphasis, "We'll simply have to duck out, I guess, if we can't get the money."

Noel didn't understand what that meant. So Laurie explained. "We'll have to pack our things and slip out in the middle of the night, so we won't be caught."

Noel grew a little sick at the thought. Laurie looked at her and said, "Listen, honey, if we can't pay her, she'll take our clothes and put us on the street. How'd you like to be walking around with nothing but the clothes on your back?"

"I'd hate it," Noel said with a shudder.

* * *

The trouble was Mrs. Blarsom had served notice on the two girls that the rent would be raised to $7 a week, since there were two of them now occupying the room. It was an outrageous price, and that was why they hadn't been able to manage to pay it. Food for two people and incidentals soon exhausted Noel's $2 a day, and, of course, on Sunday night there was nothing coming in.

"You could manage the rent, if you didn't have to pay all my expenses," Laurie said sadly.

"Now, Laurie," Noel reproached, "you just get that off your mind. I couldn't have done without you at all." Then Noel added, "We'll manage some way. And I'll have $2 tonight—remember."

That night when Noel started home from the Peacock something queer happened. A strange man followed her home. But he managed it so cleverly, Noel couldn't be sure whether or not it was done purposely.

PARENTS OF SON

GALION—A son was born Friday afternoon at the Good Samaritan hospital to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Jourdan of South Boston street.

THEATER

WHILE Norma Shearer was smart enough to give up the role of Scarlett O'Hara, Tyrone Power goes on with plans to play Jessie James, one of the worst cases of miscasting in recent years . . . Tough on Don Ameche. He and his wife had planned a European trip for years. But no sooner had they landed in Europe than the screen-radio star was rushed to the hospital at Utrecht for an emergency appendectomy. He will be released Aug. 10 from the hospital and is due back in Hollywood seven days later . . . John Gardfield, who was called to Hollywood to replace Errol Flynn in "Four Daughters,' was a New York waif who served time in a house of correction and later kicked out of a dozen schools for being a hopeless baddie. Then Angelo Patri, child psychologist, took him in hand and made an actor of him . . .

"The Crowd Roars."

Robert Taylor turns prizefighter in his latest picture, opening at midnight tonight at the Ohio; the kind of a prizefighter who is born with stout courage and tough fists, but with no heart for the rough game. Maureen O'Sullivan appears opposite him for the second time. Their first film, "Yank at Oxford," was a seasonal hit. She is seen as the daughter of a big time gambler who uses the talents of the boy from the wrong side of the tracks to further his own shady deals. Edward Arnold, Frank Morgan, William Gargan, Lionel Stander and Jane Wyman are in the supporting cast. A second attraction on the Ohio bill will be the news reel with first pictures of Douglas Corrigan landing in New York City from Ireland.

* * *

"Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse."

The play that held New York spellbound for a season has been picturized by Warner Brothers with Edward G. Robinson in the role of the distinguished criminal surgeon who embarks upon a career of crime which ends in a murder, all for the purpose of studying the mental reactions of other criminals. Or so he says. An amazing story of crime which leaves the audience bewildered as to whether the doctor was an out and out vicious criminal, or a scientist bent on experimentation, is told with highlights of suspense. Claire Trevor has the only feminine role of importance. Among the character players are Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins, Donald Crisp and others. The show is booked for five days at the Madison starting tomorrow.

* * *

"Men Are Such Fools."

Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane who have been romancing off screen are co-starred again in "Men Are Such Fools," a Majestic offering for Sunday and Monday. This is their second screen appearance together, having made "Love, Honor and Behave' several months ago. The story was written by Faith Baldwin and published serially in a national magazine. It deals with the problem of whether a wife should continue to work outside her home after marriage. Pinky Tomlin and Paula Stone head the cast of "Swing It Professor," a musical comedy film in which a dignified professor quits his position as professor of music in a college rather than introduce swing music, but who eventually has to make his living—and a tremendous success — at swing music.

* * *

"In Old Chicago."

A spectacular film with an interesting story combined to make Darryl Zanuck's "In Old Chicago" one of the bright spots early this year. The film comes back to Mansfield for three days, at the Ritz, starting Sunday. Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche are the big three in this story of early Chicago and the great fire that wiped it out. Alice Brady won an Academy award this year for the "best character work" by an actress, on her role in this picture. She plays Mrs. O'Leary whose cow is supposed to have kicked over the lantern that started the Chicago fire. As the pioneer mother whose two sons rose to power in Old Chicago, one as mayor and one as king of the underworld, she has her best dramatic role in years. Other players are Andy Devine, Sidney Blackmer, Tom Brown and Phyllis Brooks.

Malleable Firm Brings Trailer Exhibit to City

A trailer unit with mounted displays of products of the Lake City Malleable company of Cleveland will visit Mansfield industrial firms next week to bring them first hand information concerning "shock-proof" malleable castings.

E. Clay Howell, representative of the company said the display which is indirectly lighted, is to illustrate the complete story of the various steps in the manufacture of malleable products.

The display will include wooden patterns from which castings are made, castings in an unfinished form as they are sent to the customer for approval and a device for testing the tensile strength of malleable metal.

Hailed as a new feature in sales promotion, the display brings to the heads of factories and their engineers first hand information that could not be obtained unless a tour of the company's plant was made, Howell explained.

TAKES TO RIBBONS.

PARIS—(AP)—Pink and blue ribbons together sash an evening frock of eyelet embroidered white organdie. Gold ribbon ties into knots on a black tulle dinner dress. Plaid taffeta and plain moire ribbons make wide girdles for slim day frocks.

Fall riding coats are growing conservative in color, as a change from the bold plaids which have been favored.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"THAT IS so like Mother," I said with sincere and affectionate admiration, when Dicky had told me that his mother had gone upstairs to take Katherine's place with the youngsters, and so release my kinswoman for nursing duty with our newly-arrived guest, Queen Olga.

"She never fails us when there is any big task on hand." I went on as Dicky rushed me down the stairs leading from the second floor to the first. "And she never hesiates to make any sacrifice when there's anything necessary for her to do. Yet, it must be terribly hard for her to stay upstairs when so stirring a melodrama is being staged on the first floor."

"Yes, she'd give every tooth she has left to be down in the middle of things," Dicky rejoined, "but she's being a game sport about it, never batting an eye."

"I'll get her back downstairs as soon as I can," I promised, and then we were at the dining room door, our entrance unnoticed for a second because all eyes were fixed upon the recumbent, unconscious figure of Qeen Olga, to whom Katherine was ministering.

Madge Is Greeted.

Then Lillian and Harry Underwood turned their eyes as with one accord toward the door, and almost instantly they were across the room, greeting me warmly though noiselessly. With Lillian's arms around me, with her kiss upon my cheek, with her big husband's keen eyes looking down at me with affectionate concern, I felt as if I had come suddenly upon sanctuary after perilous wandering.

I had not realized how much I had missed Lillian during these weeks of terror over the mysterious menace hanging over Dicky, how much I had needed her wise counsel. But with the clasp of her dear hand my fears were suddenly dwarfed.

Then I heard Dicky speaking in low, insistent tones to his old friend.

"You're not needed in here, are you?" he asked.

"Not with Katrina on the job," Harry Underwood said. "Why?"

"We're both needed outside," Dicky said laconically. With the keen sense of timing which both men possess, Mr. Underwood had taken the cue, and almost before Dicky had finished speaking, both men were at the door and going through it.

I threw out my hand in an involuntary gesture of protest, and opened my lips to cry out a plea for them not to go outside the house in search of the prowling assassin who had fired from the roof. But I closed them again, as I realized that nothing in the world could stop either man from something he conceived to be his duty.

"What is it?" Lillian asked from the side of her mouth, so that neither the apparently unconscious queen, her anxious daughter bending over her nor Katherine ministering to her should hear and be disturbed.

Relates Experience.

In the same fashion, and with as few swift words as possible, I told her of taking Mother Graham and Katie to the balcony to witness their arrival after Dicky had decided that the kitchen was too dangerous for us to occupy while the mysterious guests were arriving.

"If that isn't the Dicky bird!" she said under her breath, and I went on with my story of the shot from the roof, of my trip to the attic and my experience with the murderous intruder, and his escape through the trap door at Dicky's bluff of being accompanied by other men.

"Dicky bolted the door from the inside so he can't get back inside the house," I finished.

"I'll bet you thought of it," she murmured, and then went on swiftly without giving me a chance to answer.

"So that's what they're doing now, hunting the lad with the gun?" she said. "I could wish that he would get clear away if it weren't so vital that we get a line on the ingredients of this particular mess."

In my heart I echoed her wish without qualification, but aloud I said nothing, and she caught at my hand.

"We can't do our men any good worrying about them," she murmured. "Let's go and give the queen the once over. Perhaps Katherine can use us."

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Aug. 7.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimony of a rather doubtful day, except for mystical or occult work, in which there may be much interest.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly prosperous year, particularly in mystical things. There may be behind-the-scenes matters to deal with, attended by upheaval and disapprobation of superiors.

A child born on this day may be fairly efficient and ambitious, possibly in singular lines. It may be able to write mystery stories.

* * *

For Monday, Aug. 8.

Monday's astrological forecast shows a particularly lively and devastating day, with possible radical change in environment and contacts. But be prepared for some setbacks or postponements. All pertaining to writings, publications and promotions may be favorable and should flourish. There may be a rather subtle or intriguing situation, but if cautiously handled it should result in singular benefit.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a rather spectacular year, with upheavals, travel and a possible disappointment. It is a day of subtle atmosphere.

A child born this day may be brilliant, versatile and intellectual, as well as fond of romance, adventure and travel.

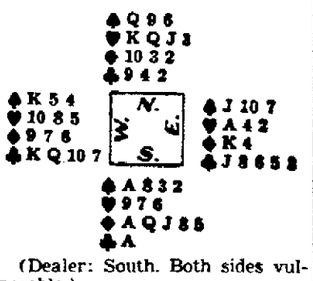
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT TO EXPECT

WHEN YOUR side has bid three suits, the remaining one is almost sure to be led if you wind up playing a no-trump game contract. It is therefore incumbent upon you to beware of that declaration unless you are prepared to care for whatever risks are involved in that lead. Usually this means one of two things—either a double stopper or a single sure stopper with enough set-up tricks to run your game before the other fellows can regain the lead.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

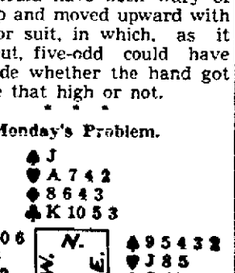
North and South got along famously for the first two rounds of bidding on this deal, with 1-Diamond by South, 1-Heart by North, 1-Spade by South and then 2-Diamonds by North. Guessing that his diamond suit was probably solid, South then hopped into 2-No Trump. The logic was not far-reaching enough, as even with solid diamonds there would not be nine immediate tricks in sight unless North had some, too, which could be run at once.

West led his club king against this and immediately knocked out the ace. Trying to get into dummy to take the diamond finesse, South led a heart, which East won. The declarer now had a total of ten tricks in sight, enough to make four no trump, but he could never collect more than eight of them, for some had to go to waste while the opponents scored the setting tricks.

After North's 2-Diamonds bid, South should have been wary of no trump and moved upward with the minor suit, in which, as it turned out, five-odd could have been made whether the hand got bid quite that high or not.

* * *

Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

Against bidding of 1-No Trump, 2-No Trumps, 3-No Trumps, what are the two great reasons why West should lead a certain particular card?

WESTBROOK CHILDREN HAVE ANNUAL PARTY

Miss Betty McConnell, Miss Mary Fighter Hostesses; Other Social Affairs Are Scheduled for Members Throughout August.

THE annual children's party given at the Westbrook Country club was held yesterday afternoon between the hours of 3 and 5 p. m. Miss Betty McConnell and Miss Mary Fighter were the hostesses for the affair. Miss Margaret Black, who was to serve as hostess, was out of the city.

Among entertainment features of the afternoon were a variety of games. The children had a fish pond from which small prizes were awarded and a peanut hunt on the porch. Billy Endriss and Nancy Wendt won prizes. At the close of games the children were served refreshments.

The rest of this month will be filled with a broad entertainment program for members of the club. Mrs. Howard P. Hosler will be hostess Wednesday morning for a breakfast-bridge party at the club. One other event, a bridge-tea on Aug. 24, will round out the calendar. Mrs. James M. Hill is hostess.

The end of the month and the arrival of Labor day do not, however, finish the club's program. A number of equally entertaining affairs will be held during September.

News-Journal Tourney Draws Record Entry

172 Players to Participate In Five Events of Annual Tournament to Get Under Way Sunday.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

PAIRINGS for The News-Journal's annual tennis tournament were completed at drawings held in the city building last night.

There are 35 players entered in the senior men's singles, 16 in the women's singles, 15 in the junior boys' singles, 62 in the senior men's doubles and 24 in the mixed doubles. No entries were received for the junior girls' singles, but the registration for the tournament as a whole was more than gratifying.

The entry constitutes a new record for The News-Journal city championship event, and there is every reason to believe that the elimination will be the most interesting ever staged in Mansfield.

* * *

Play in the tournament will get under way Sunday, and all first round matches must be completed by Friday night. Pairings will be found elsewhere on this page.

* * *

Report All Matches on Morning After Play.

IMPORTANT—Do not attempt to report results of matches to The News-Journal in the evening. All matches should be reported the day after play between the hours of 8 and 9 a. m. Call Canal 4251 for the sports department.

* * *

Any difficulties encountered over the selections of playing dates and courts should be reported immediately to the sports department. No delays will be permitted due to the brief time in which the tournament will be conducted.

* * *

It is also important that contestants who do not have telephones contact their opponents to eliminate any delay in scheduling matches.

* * *

It was originally planned to set the junior event matches on a fixed schedule, but due to the small number of contestants it was decided to permit the players to make their own playing arrangements the same as the senior players.

* * *

All of the defending champions have entered. They are Lowell Bournes, men's singles; Bob Enos and Bob Spear, men's doubles, and Janie Kuhn and John Foltz, mixed doubles.

* * *

No tournaments were held for women during the last two years because of a lack of entries, but the 1935 champion, Janie Kuhn, will again be in the field. This year marks the first time The News-Journal has attempted to stage junior eliminations, so there is no defending champion in this event. However, Gene Rudolph, who won the playground junior title a year ago, is seeded No. 1 in a strong field.

* * *

Defending Champions Top Division Seedings.

ALL of the defending champions were seeded No. 1 in their events, with the semi-finalists and quarter-finalists of last year's tournament being rated accordingly. Other positions in the pairings were arranged by drawings.

* * *

NOTE TO LOIS SHUEY—The selection of court and time of play is optional with the players paired. You should have no difficulty arranging your match to fit your convenience.

* * *

Included among the entrants is Charley Hart of Shelby, former Shelby football star who was outstanding on the Case eleven last fall. Hart will appear in the mixed doubles and senior men's doubles.

* * *

Open Delayed District Tourney at League Park Sunday

FIRST round play in the delayed district softball tournament will eliminate all but one team at League park Sunday.

Five games are on Sunday's schedule, which gets under way at noon, and they will determine the identity of the teams to collide in the semi-finals a week from Sunday.

Mansfield's hope for a championship represenative in the state finals in Elyria rested with the Beeber-Ross Beers, DeLuxe Cabs and Hartman Electrics.

All three Mansfield clubs will be in action Sunday, with the Electrics opening the five-game card with the Faultless Rubbers of Ashland at 12 o'clock.

The second game will pit the DeLuxe Cabs against the Pitkin Provisions of Mt. Vernon at 1:30, with the winner of the first game engaging the Timkin Roller Bearings of Mt. Vernon at 2:30.

The Siler Hatcheries of Ashland tackle the Marion Merchants at 3:30, and the Beeber-Ross club is paired with the Shellmar Products of Mt. Vernon at 4:30.

Director Don Cram announced today that all games in the first round will be seven innings.

The tournament was scheduled to open last Sunday, but the games were postponed because of the all-day rain.

Beeber-Ross Beers Near Series Victory

The Beeber-Ross Beers came within one game of cinching the seven-game softball series with the DeLuxe Cabs when they registered a 3 to 0 victory at Johns park yesterday, Fritz Carver limiting the Cabbies to five hits.

The Beers tallied one run in the first, another in the third and the last in the seventh as they collected 10 hits off the delivery of the Cabs, who have yet to win a game in the series. Hunt featured the attack with a home run and single.

Johnnies Next On Liberty's Softball Card

Prospect's Nemesis Play At John's Park Monday.

Johns park can expect some trouble Monday when it engages Liberty park in one of the two City Class A softball league games on next week's schedule.

The Johnnies, first half champions, got a lift last week when they regained a share of first place as the Liberty club stopped Prospect park.

But Monday it will be different at Johns park, where the game is scheduled.

Liberty park is in the second division, but it has shown new life, and, according to league followers, must be reckoned with the rest of the way.

Prospect, which owns the other half of first place, will attempt to regain its winning stride at the expense of the Richland county fish and game representatives of North park at North park.

If Prospect can turn back the Sportsmen and Liberty halts the Johnnies, the former team can again step into sole possession of first place.

Halts Streak With 6-4 Win

Foresters End Zents' Long Victory March.

The Catholic Foresters brought a stop to Zent's Radios winning streak yesterday when they won a 6 to 4 decision in a Y. M. C. A. club league game at Empire field. The defeat was the first of the season for the Radiomen.

The Foresters' attack was featured by Freiheit, who drove in both the tying and winning runs with singles.

Led by Boling, who collected a triple, two doubles and a single, and Baumgardner and DeHaven, who obtained three hits apiece, the Schoolmasters walloped Local 40, 11 to 6, at Prospect park. Cliff of the losers hit for the circuit. These were the only two games reported.

Dale McKinley ran his strike-out total to 307 for the season yesterday when he set 10 down via the whiffing route as he hurled the Musille Cigars to a 5 to 1 softball victory over the Forest Gardens at the losers' field. McKinley allowed the Gardens only two hits, and did not permit a run until the eighth. Kinney led the Cigars with a triple and single as Bush yielded only six hits and whiffed eight. Four errors figured prominently in the Cigars' scoring in the sixth when they tallied all of their runs.

Feller's Wildness Makes His Value to Indians Uncertain

Issues 11 Walks to Permit New York to Take First Game of Important Series by 6 to 1 Score.

CLEVELAND —(LE)— You can't give a champion an opening and not pay for the mistake.

That vital lesson in sports was indelibly impressed upon the mind of 19 year old Bob Feller here today after he was beaten 6 to 1 by the New York Yankees in the opening game of the crucial series that may decide the American league pennant. A crowd of 62,573 fans saw the contest.

As a result of the defeat the Cleveland Indians fell to a point 3½ games to the rear of the pace-setting Yankees, the farthest back they have been in the race this season.

From the day he made his major league debut two seasons ago Feller has lacked control. In spite of it he has managed to win his share of games. However, yesterday in the Yanks he met a champion and like all other great athletic combinations the New Yorkers are opportunists.

He had a snake-like curve ball that kept the Yankees guessing, but the Iowa farmboy couldn't consistently tell where he was going to throw the ball.

In the seven innings he worked Feller walked 11 batsmen and hit another. A hurler may skim by on a preformance like that against second division clubs, but not against the world champion Yankees.

The Yanks made only three hits off Feller and one more off Al Milnar who pitched the final two rounds. However, they didn't need many safeties as long as the young Indian moundsman was in a chartiable mood.

The Yanks scored once in the second on a walk to George Selkirk and Joe Glenn's double. They added another in the third when Frank Crosetti was hit by a pitched ball and Tommy Henrich walked. The double steal was then worked and Crosetti scored as Dimaggio flied out.

In the fifth New York picked up two more runs with only one hit when Feller walked four men in this inning. The final two counters came after two were out in the seventh on a pass to Selkirk and Joe Gordon's 15th home run of the season.

* * *

THE veteran Irving (Bump) Hadley, a member of the Yanks' second string mound corps, went the distance for the New Yorkers in impressive fashion. He gave up only five hits, and completely handcuffed Earl Averill, Hal Trosky and Ken Keltner, the supposedly power sluggers in the Tribe lineup.

Legion Plays At Coshocton

Geiger Expected To Hurl For Mansfield Sunday.

Dewey Durant's American Legion club, which figures in a three-way tie for second place, goes to Coshocton Sunday for a Central Ohio semi-pro league game.

The game was originally scheduled to be played at the Fairground, but the tilt was shifted because of the poor attendance at the Legion's home games.

The other two games remaining on the Mansfield team's schedule will also be played on the road, Durant stated.

Durant has not announced his pitching choice for the Coshocton game, but he indicated that Harold Geiger would probably be his choice.

Lancaster plays at Jackson and Newark invades Columbus for the other games Sunday.

SCORE FIVE IN SEVENTH TO WIN OVER WPA TEAM

Scoring five runs in the seventh and last inning, the All-Stars defeated the WPA No. 1 softball team, 11 to 7, at the Armory yesterday. Clement hit a home run for the victors.

Hi-Speeds at Home; Elks Play Twin Bill

Oilmen Meet Cleveland Club at Fairground Sunday; Lodgemen Tackle Springfield, Billiards.

VIEING with the district softball tournament and other sports events for the patronage of Mansfield sports followers Sunday will be a pair of baseball attractions.

Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds will engage the Cleveland All-Stars at the Fairground at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, while the Mansfield colored Elks will meet the Rex Billiards and Springfield colored Giants at Tillman park, located two miles out North Main street road.

Strengthen Team.

Manager Herrick announced that the Hi-Speeds will be strengthened for the game with the Cleveland club.

He has signed "Soddy" Stahl, Lefty Deeds and Bill Heinman. The former two are pitchers, while Heinman is a first baseman and catcher. Deeds formerly hurled for the American Legion, Stahl is of Bellville and Heinman was a member of the Akron Yankees until he came to this city a month ago.

The Cleveland club has compiled a good record in independent baseball this year, and among the clubs in this vicinity which it has beaten are Hayesville and Alliance.

Included in the visitors lineup are Stan Mellek, who played with the Poschke Barbecues last year; Bruce Wilmot, late of the Favorite Knits, and Nick Trucci, who has had some minor league experience.

Trucci or Frank Molovic, all-around East high star, will do the hurling for the visitors.

Trouble Ahead.

Bus Hawkins' Elks will probably find plenty of trouble in the Springfield and Billiards clubs Sunday.

The Springfield team has compiled an enviable record against colored opponents, which included the Pittsburgh Crawfords, Homestead Grays and Chicago Americans.

Featured in the Springfield lineup are Warfield, pitcher, and Leigh, outfielder, late of the Pittsburgh National colored league team, and Marshall, a third baseman of Detroit.

The Mansfield team's lineup will include Avery, J. Brown, W. Brown, Tryly, Woodson, Glover, Ragsdale and Luckie, with Jones and Walker doing the twirling.

Manager John Stoner of the Billiards announced that either Smith or Moore will face the Elks, with May, a new catcher from Columbus, behind the plate.

Mohicans, Merchants, Canzols Play Away.

THE Mohican Chevrolets will attempt to halt the nine-game winning streak of Ontario, Sunday, when they invade Ontario for a single game. Either Tucker or Patterson, formerly of the American Legion, will twirl for Ontario.

Dick Bair or George Potye will hurl for the Chevrolets.

* * *

The Ira D. Ling Canzols will go to Galion, Sunday, to meet the Canfielders. Manager Kuyler has nominated Karl Theaker for pitching duty. Hammer will hurl for Galion. The following Canzol players are requested to report at the Ling station at 12:30 p. m. Sunday for the trip; W. Lockhart, K. Lockhart, Miller, Au, Theaker, Weigand, Ziegler, Bogantz, Small, Pittinger and Smollen.

* * *

The Mansfield Merchants will play their first game under their new manager, Pete Metz, Sunday at Hayesville. The Merchants will line up with Bolantz, first; Beal, second; R. Backensto, short; B. Backensto, third; Metz, Hammett and Pittinger, outfield, with Remy and Weaver forming the battery. McKinley or Anderson will oppose the Merchants.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

THOMAS J. HERBERT

Restoration of decent government in Ohio is the most vital issue before the people today, Thomas J. Herbert of Cleveland, the Republican nominee for Attorney General in 1936, declared as he launched into the final stages of his militant campaign for re-nomination at the August 9 primary election.

As one of his qualifications, Herbert points to his knowledge of the office, gained from eight years' experience as an Assistant Attorney General. During this time he won many important legal battles for the people of the state, including the Ohio Bell Telephone rate case. He now is special counsel for the city of Cleveland in its fight to obtain lower rates from the East Ohio Gas Co.

Wounded in action as a combat pilot in France during the World War, Colonel Herbert was decorated for bravery by the British and American governments.

was said to be a political outbreak.

Both Barkley and Chandler wound up their campaigns with a flurry of speech-making. Barkley spoke in 19 towns, winding up with a rally in his home town of Paducah. Chandler spoke twice yesterday and twice last night, and concluded his campaign with an early morning radio speech today.

Spokesmen for Barkley and Chandler were equally confident. Barkley's men predicted their candidate's nomination by a majority of 75,000, while Chandlerites foresaw their man the winner by between 30,000 and 40,000 votes.

Senate Committee Watches Kentucky.

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The senate campaign expenditures committee watched the Kentucky primary election closely today to determine whether the winning candidate would be challenged when he seeks to take his seat.

Four committee investigators who reported "deplorable" campaign tactics watched the voting.

In a preliminary report they held Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley and Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler equally guilty of questionable methods.

Meanwhile, the committee awaited a report from six investigators in Tennessee, where Tom Stewart defeated Sen. George L. Berry for the Democratic senatorial nomination. A preliminary report said the campaign was shot through with "gutter politics."

Reports to the committee showed $189,990 spent by 91 candidates so far. That included contributions totaling $113,987. Committee Chairman Morris Sheppard, D., Tex., said any reports found unsatisfactory would be investigated.

age pensioners were ordered to vote for Governor Davey or lose their pensions.

Secretary of State William J. Kennedy said that he found after an examination of 200 applications of disabled absent voters in Warren county that only 36 were Democrats.

Kennedy said that irregularities were first discovered when the clerk of the county election board reported that two old age pensioners had twice applied for disabled voters ballots. One application stated they were Republicans while the other listed them as Democrats.

The board clerk "made the mistake" of turning over two packages of applications to Mayor Gilmour of Lebanon, a Republican, Kennedy said. Gilmour in turn distributed them at the Otterbein institution for aged.

Kennedy said Dilatush was prepared to institute fraud charges if his questioning today warranted such action.

At Urbana, impounding of all Champaign county disabled voters ballots until it is definitely established that each was voted in accordance with election laws, was demanded today by John H. James, county campaign manager for Charles Sawyer, opponent of Governor Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

James made the demand in a telegram to Secretary of State Kennedy and in a letter to the Champaign county elections board.

He said it is "currently reported that persons able to move about outside of their houses have already voted and that there have been pernicious political activity on the part of employes of the local old age pension office in putting pressure on pensioners."

The Story of OD and AD and the TOMATOES

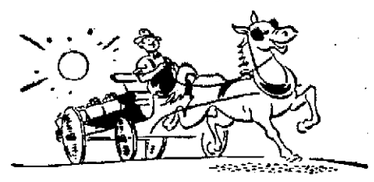
OD and AD owned neighboring farms. Both decided to grow tomatoes. But when their tomatoes were ripe, OD and AD had different ideas as to how they should sell them. This is the story of what happened.

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomatoes



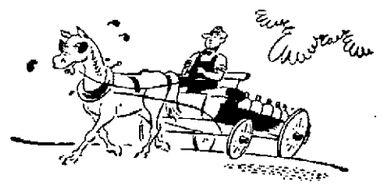
OD filled baskets with his tomatoes and put them in a wagon and drove to town. He went up and down the streets looking for people who wanted to buy tomatoes. Some days he sold all. Some days he sold only a few. When the season was over, he found he had made just enough to live on.

AD thought there must be a better way to sell his tomatoes. He knew he must tell people about them, but he decided he could never sell very many tomatoes if he talked to people one at a time. So he used one of the simplest forms of ADVERTISING. He built a stand by the side of the road where many people passed. He put up a sign that said: "AD's big, red, ripe, juicy tomatoes." Because so many people saw the sign, enough people stopped to buy so that he sold all his ripe tomatoes every day. Many who bought, remembering his name on the sign, came back again and again. When the season was over, he had money in the bank.

* * *

One day AD heard that tomato juice was healthful and good to drink. He thought it would also be convenient to handle, to sell, and to serve in the home. He told OD about it. The next year both decided to make and sell tomato juice.

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomato Juice



OD's wife squeezed tomatoes all day and put the juice in bottles. OD took it to town and went from door to door, looking for people who wanted to buy tomato juice. In a whole day he could call at only about 50 homes. As most people had never heard of tomato juice and did not know how good it was, he sold only a few bottles each day.

AD felt sure there was a better way to make and sell his tomato juice. He took some money from the bank and bought a shiny new press that squeezed out juice easily and quickly. He put the juice in bottles that could be tightly sealed. He had labels printed for the bottles, reading:

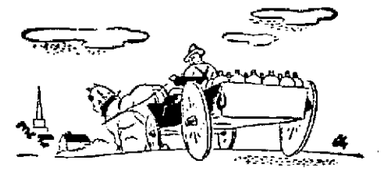
AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE.

He went to the grocery stores in town, where many people came every day, and asked the grocers to put a few of his bottles on their counters. Then he put an advertisement in newspapers read by thousands of people. The advertisement said:

"Enjoy the refreshing taste of AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE, pressed from big, red, vine-ripened Tomatoes. Good to drink and good for you. At your favorite grocery store."

Because so many people read about it, enough people asked for it to exhaust the supply quickly. And remembering AD's name on the label they came back and asked for it again. So AD bought tomatoes from his neighbors and made more tomato juice to supply the demand.

What OD and AD Did The Next Year



OD and his wife decided that if they were going to make any money, they would have to work harder. So she got up earlier in the morning and picked tomatoes and squeezed and bottled juice all day. OD spent a longer day in town trying to see more people in order to sell more bottles. But, even though OD and his wife worked long and hard, they could not make any money.

AD now saw how true it was that the more people he told about his tomato juice, the more he sold. So he advertised in other cities, telling women how good tomato juice was for their families to drink. He also sent salesmen to call on grocers. He got so many orders that he arranged to buy tomatoes from hundreds of other farmers, built a bigger building, bought more equipment, more bottles and labels, and employed more people. AD knew that, because his name was on every bottle, he must always maintain the high quality of his product. And, because he did this, women soon insisted on AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE.

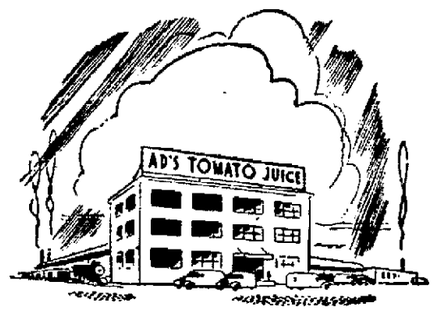
AD already had found that the more he advertised and the more bottles he sold, the less it cost him to put up each bottle. Therefore, as his advertising was extended all over the country and his sales increased, he reduced the price. Thus more and more people could afford to enjoy tomato juice, and, although his profit per bottle was now very small indeed, he sold so many bottles that he had a very fine business. So both AD and his customers were benefited.



AD tells OD how an Idea Became an Industry—through ADVERTISING

ONE DAY, years later, OD called on his old neighbor AD. He said, "It's remarkable how your business has grown since you got that idea about selling tomato juice."

"Yes," said AD, "but even more important have been the benefits to other people. We are now only one out of many producers of tomato juice. Yet we take all the tomatoes grown by more than a thousand farmers who have here an assured market for their crops. We give steady employment the year round to several hundred people and employ hundreds more on part-time. We pay more than half a million dollars a year to manufacturers of cans, bottles, labels, supplies, and equipment.

"The entire industry now sells more than twenty million dollars worth of tomato juice a year and the public enjoys its healthful benefits—at the lowest price at which it ever has been sold. Yes, tomato juice was a great idea, but that idea would have benefited very few—without ADVERTISING to tell the story."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

IN LOVING remembrance of our dear father Frank Dorner, who was called home one year ago Sunday, August 7, 1937:
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dear and loved by all.
His loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew it he was gone.
A bitter grief, a shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear.
God loved him too, and thought it best
So he took him home to eternal rest.
But only those who loved him best
Can tell the heartache of not Saying Alas, Farewell.
His Children.

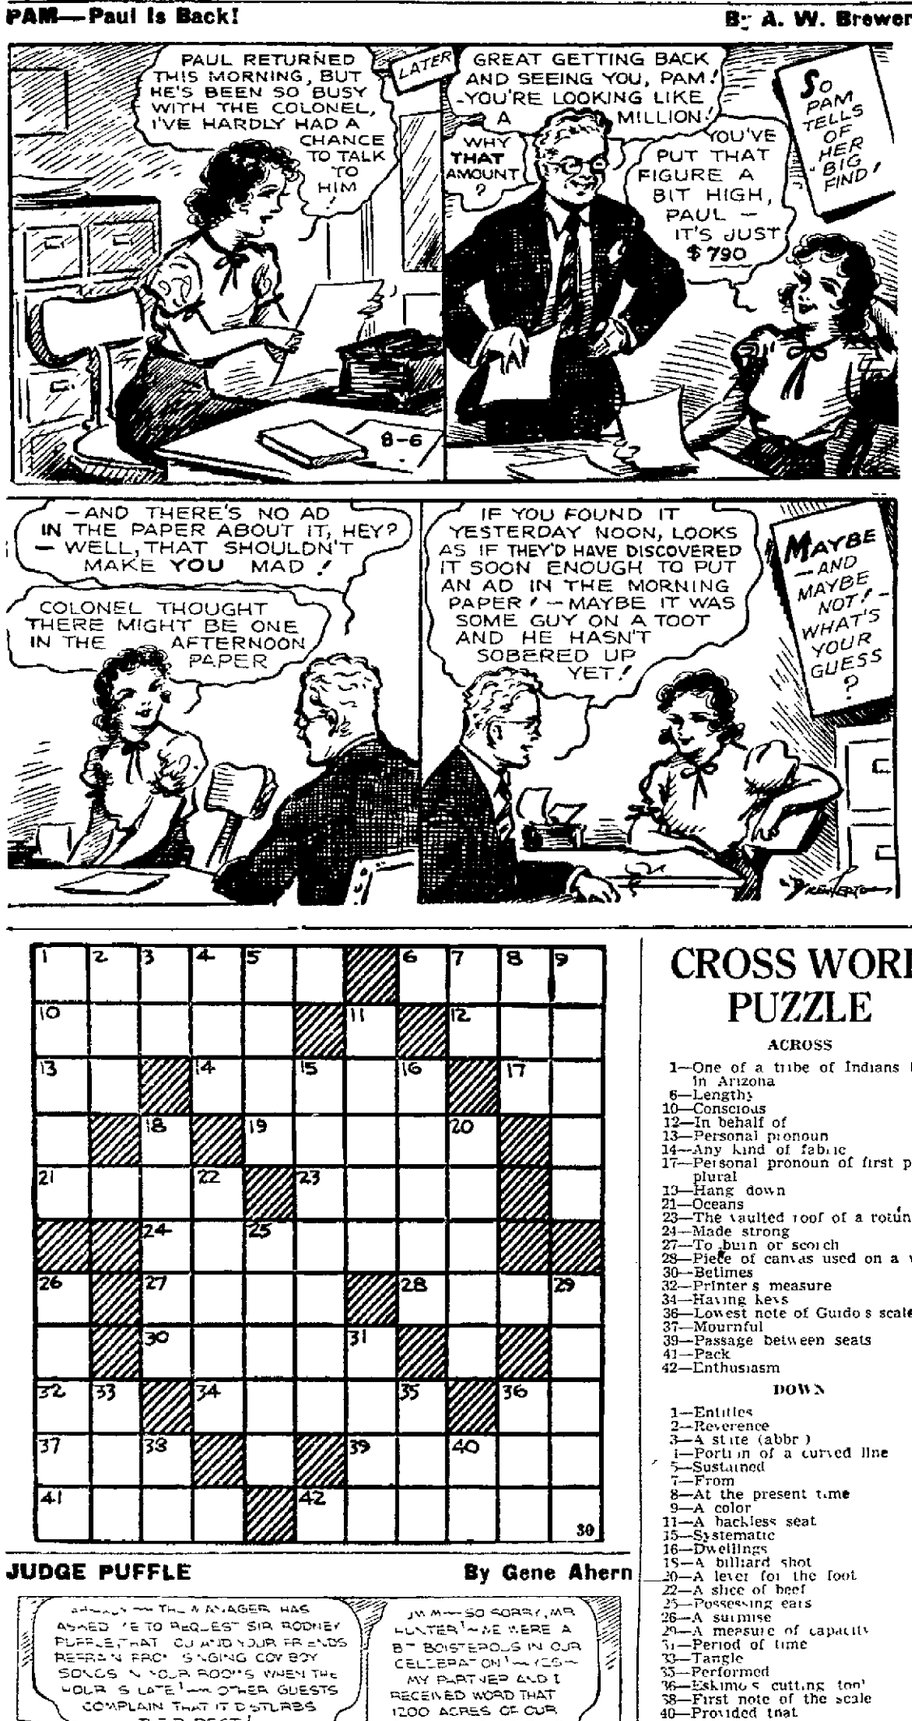
PAM—Paul Is Back! By A. W. Brewerton



PAUL RETURNED THIS MORNING, BUT HE'S BEEN SO BUSY WITH THE COLONEL, I'VE HARDLY HAD A CHANCE TO TALK TO HIM
LATER
GREAT GETTING BACK AND SEEING YOU, PAM! —YOU'RE LOOKING LIKE A MILLION!
WHY THAT AMOUNT?
YOU'VE PUT THAT FIGURE A BIT HIGH, PAUL — IT'S JUST $790
So PAM TELLS OF HER BIG FIND!
—AND THERE'S NO AD IN THE PAPER ABOUT IT, HEY? — WELL, THAT SHOULDN'T MAKE YOU MAD!
COLONEL THOUGHT THERE MIGHT BE ONE IN THE AFTERNOON PAPER
IF YOU FOUND IT YESTERDAY NOON, LOOKS AS IF THEY'D HAVE DISCOVERED IT SOON ENOUGH TO PUT AN AD IN THE MORNING PAPER! — MAYBE IT WAS SOME GUY ON A TOOT AND HE HASN'T SOBERED UP YET!
MAYBE — AND MAYBE NOT! — WHAT'S YOUR GUESS?

Industrial Averages Threaten Year's Peak After New High Closing Level.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market forged ahead today in a broad advance following yesterday's rise. The industrial averages came within striking distance of the year's high after establishing a new closing high level yesterday. The market opened strong in big dealings. Initial blocks ran to 4,000 shares in General Motors. The list extended its gains during the first hour and then quieted down. Some profit-taking developed but recessions from the highs were small.

General Motors continued in the forefront of the leaders, rising around 2 points to a new high for the year. Chrysler was as strong while Nash was active and higher.

Bethlehem and U. S. Steel set the pace for their group, advancing a point and more. Big steel was a late opener, starting at 62 on 3,000 shares about 15 minutes after the rest of the market got underway.

Dupont was buoyant in the chemicals, gaining more than 2 to a new high. Gains in the coppers ran to more than a point, wth Phelps Dodge in new high ground.

There were unusually large dealings in railroad shares. N. Y. Central was prominent. D. & H. and C. & O. rose over a point each, the former at a new high.

All active rubber shares bettered previous high marks for the year. Westinghouse rose 2 in the blue chips. Elsewhere the trend was upward with the exception of gold shares and the farm implements. The latter were upset by the fall in grain prices.

Swing Out With Sharp Charges As Primary Campaign In State Nears Close.

Answering Day's charges that he seeks the senatorship only to protect his own and his family's fortune, Taft said:

"Of course that is pure demagoguery. Many liberals and even radicals have owned stocks and bonds. Senator Couzens of Michigan was one of the wealthiest men in the United States—and Franklin Roosevelt is no pauper."

Day, who followed Taft on the platform, told the rally that he alone can win from the Democrats next November and cried "the time has come to stop considering the United States senate as a house of lords."

"What is the use," he asked, "of talking about issues, important as they are, unless we can pick a man who can win and have an actual vote in the senate to put our ideas into effect."

Veteran Alliance Lawyer Candidate For State Court

William L. Hart of Alliance, an attorney for 41 years and former president of the Ohio Bar association, is seeking the Republican nomination for judge of the Ohio Supreme court.

Hart was elected to serve an unexpired term on the court four years ago. He is a life member of the American Law Institute, and for the past several years has been chairman of the Ohio State Bar association committee on American law institute, which is engaged especially in the preparation and publication of Ohio annotations to the institutes restatement of law.

Hart was born and reared on a farm near Salineville, Columbiana county. He became a teacher in the public schools of Columbiana and Stark counties, alternating that work with college work at Mt. Union where he graduated. In 1929 the college conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Law.

Hart was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1897 and has been practicing in Alliance since that time. He has been a trustee of Mt. Union college for the past 25 years.

He is married and has two sons, both of whom are attorneys.

list the electors who ask only for a school bond or relief levy ballot.

"We may have to work tonight and Sunday to set up a system for handling the unaffiliated voters' ballots," Marriott said. He indicated that it may be necessary to establish an independent system of poll books for registering the names of non-party voters.

Assuring voters that their ballots will be secret and they need not worry about being spied on election day, board of election officials today cited a state law regarding the secrecy of voting for political candidates or on any bond issue or levy question.

The statement was issued to counteract reports that appointive public workers in the county had been told by campaigners that the individual result of their voting next Tuesday would be made known to their superiors.

"There is no way in which any party leader or department head can learn how a voter marked his ballot, unless that voter tells him," the board of elections statement said.

"they stand unanswered, unrefuted." He said Davey had avoided them by injecting issues into the present campaign which do not "relate in any sense to the integrity of public service."

"The question naturally arises why an administration of such repute submits itself to the electorate. The answer is easily found in the official belief at Columbus that an organized political machine, a far-flung patronage unit, and a campaign fund which pales the days and practices of Mark Hanna, can muster sufficient strength . . . to bring about a result in conflict with the sober thinking of our party.

"In other words, the chance of victory is staked upon conscription of office holders and the distress of tens of thousands of voters out of work."

Convicted Boy's Mother Takes Stand In Murder Trial

Not That It Matters

One Last Word About School Bond Issue and Why Mansfield Needs It

—By JANE WILLIAMS

FOR the past two months every person who wields an editorial typewriter has been expressing opinions on matters that pertain to governmental problems of their nation, their state and their communities. They were your problems, too, and as you read of them you began to think of them, to talk and to ask questions.

Next Tuesday you are going to have the opportunity to express YOUR opinion, and to express it in a way that will MEAN SOMETHING, that will be heard across the entire United States.

You're going to have the opportunity to vote for the men you want to represent you in congress; if you want a rubber-stamp, a yes-man, then vote for the one you know will be just that; if you prefer a man who will remember that he represents a group of people and not just a one-man government, look for his name on the ballot and put a mark in front of it.

If you are a Republican you haven't a choice as to who will head your state ticket at the November polls; but if you are a Democrat, you have an important decision to make, so important that party politics become insignificent when compared with the outcome.

* * *

YOU WILL have an opportunity next Tuesday to express your opinion on three important bond issues which directly affect you and your home. We've talked them over so many times—but let's take another squint at them before we go to the polls.

You will decide by your votes whether Mansfield will go ahead with its public school system or stand still while the city grows completely away from it; you will decide whether to build now and save 45 per cent of the cost, or build later and pay it all ourselves; you will decide, among other things, whether 250 men will be taken off relief and given steady work for a year. And if you vote for the bond issue, it will cost you 83 cents a thousand dollars on your real estate each year for 20 years, or just 43 cents more than you are now paying.

* * *

YOU WILL have an opportunity, too, to express your opinion on a most important question: shall the home owners of Mansfield be singled out to support the entire relief burden of the city and township, or shall it be made a community problem with everyone helping?

Will you vote for or against a proposition to tax property holders $316,000 during the next two years—$100,000 a year on Mansfield property and $58,000 a year on Mansfield and Madison township property—for a relief situation that no one can possibly gauge two years from now?

With the government spending billions in the next two years to relieve unemployment, will Mansfield have as many families on relief at the end of two years as we have now? Yet, city officials are asking you to believe that we will have.

* * *

OFFICIALS have designated that $316,000 as an operating fund, which means that it can be used for relief or any other city or township expenditures, when the relief burden is considerably lighter than now.

If the two relief bonds are approved, the large property owners can and probably will pass the tax on to renters by increasing rents, but the "little fellow" who owns his own home, will be left holding the bag, for an additional $9, $15, $21 or more a year, depending upon the value of his property. The relief bonds mean $3 a thousand more a year on your taxes.

All of you voters who haven't been interested in primary elections in other years, remember this: that next Tuesday every person in Mansfield who won't be affected by the additional taxes will be out to vote. Will you be there to voice YOUR opinion—or will you stay home and howl about the results afterward?

* * *

NOTES ON THE CUFF: Be so you-know-what glad when this you-know-what election is over so I can think about vacation plans. . . . Week-ended on the banks of the Ohio at California, Ky., and heard plenty of sympathy expressed for Count Haugwitz-Reventlow by two persons who made a world cruise with his wife, Barbara Hutton. They didn't know him—they just knew her. Our hosts just returned from an African hunting trip, bringing back enough satiny, black and white striped zebra hides to upholster several white chairs. Sounds like Grandma's horsehair davenport, but the skins are like velvet. . . .

* * *

VERY FUNNY about that city councilman who is carrying water on both shoulders on the school bond issue . . . Told around pretty generally that he was all for the bonds, but has been working in his ward to defeat it . . . Evidently never studied McGuffey's Reader from which one learned "the truth itself is not believed from one who often has deceived." Nice to remember in case he ever wants to run for a city office

G.O.P. Forum Hits 'Economic Breakdown'

5-DAY SESSION LASHES TREND OF LEGISLATION

Administrative Practices Also Criticized In Report Of Program Committee.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Reporting its conclusions after a five-day meeting, the Republican party program committee today charged that present legislative and administrative trends threaten the breakdown of the American economic system as well as disintegration of responsible and effective government.

The committee, which ended its discussions last night, disavowed any intention to commit the Republican party or any candidate to the convictions expressed. Instead, the committee explained its statement was merely a review of conclusions reached during the forum.

Committee Report.

The statement said in part:

"The committee is not attempting to draft a program of short range political expediencies. Its concern is with a program that will best serve the long range interests of the people as a whole.

"The committee has the conviction that, under the present trends in legislation and administration the United States may suffer the two-fold disaster which has overtaken peoples quite as sure of their destiny as we have been—the breakdown of an elaborate economic system and the disintegration of responsible and effective government.

"After five years, in which the present administration has had funds and a freedom to act without parallel in our political history, we face the tragic fact that some 12,000,000 Americans are still unemployed.

"The overwhelming reason why 12,000,000 Americans are still without employment is the confusion and uncertainty into which the present administration has plunged us.

"Untested policies — hastily conceived, wastefully financed, ineffectively administered, and conflicting with one another — are persistently employed."

The statement was prepared by Dr. Glenn Frank, committee chairman.

SLAIN OVER BEER

Gunman Objects to Paying Dime, Kills Tavern Keeper.

CHICAGO—(INS)—A young gunman early today shot and killed a tavern keeper because the saloon owner refused to cut the price of a glass of beer from a dime to a nickel.

The gunman walked into the bar of Alex Sulima, 53, ordered a glass of beer and laid a five-cent piece down.

"A glass of beer costs 10 cents," said Sulima.

"This for you then," said the man as he drew a gun.

The gunman waved Sulima and nine other persons, including Mrs. Sulima, toward a rear room. When Sulima lunged at him, the gunman fired. Sulima was fatally wounded.

JOINS GIRDLER FOR TESTIMONY

Youngstown Sheet and Tube Head Also to Appear Before Senate Committee.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Board Chairman H. G. Dalton of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, will appear before the senate civil liberties committee next week about the same time as Tom Girdler, ranking head of Republic Steel, Chairman Robert M. LaFollette, (P., Wis.,) said today.

Girdler is scheduled for Thursday and Dalton may follow him. But before these two steel masters appear the committee will complete hearings on last year's steel strike events at Warren, Massillon, Canton and other centers.

"What we have tried to do in these hearings," said LaFollette, "is to present a complete picture of the strike, showing the collective bargaining negotiations, the incidents of the strike itself, and then seeing what these officials have to say about them."

The committee virtually completed investigation of the Youngstown situation yesterday by hearing the testimony of strikers and police officials who participated in the June 19, 1937 riot in front of the Republic Steel corporation in which two persons were killed.

Next week members of the Ohio national guard will tell of their activities in the strike zone, which they patrolled for about a month.

Up and Down THE STREET

Esther Lantz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lantz, South Mulberry street, who is a student at Columbia College of Dramatic Art, Chicago, made her first appearance on the professional stage in her home town. Without announcement and as something of a "dark horse," Esther played the leading role last night with the Madge Kinsey Players in "Where Is My Teddy?" and repeats it again tonight. Esther is undecided between a stage and a teaching career.

The Soap Box derby is exciting in itself, so who could blame the excited camerman, operating a machine that was a little strange to him, for missing a couple of shots? Operating a focal plane camera, he used a lens cap, because he's forgotten the slide for the film pack. And when he focussed for a couple of pictures he particularly wanted, he forgot to remove the lens cap—and, of course, got blank negatives.

Sonny Wiley, the new Soap Box Derby champion of Mansfield, is back on the job of selling ice cream bars. Yesterday he was as decorated as a hero returning from the wars, wearing his medal as the champion, last year's medal as runner up in the B class finals, and the charmed rabbit foot which Sonny is convinced stands for success. The latter is only borrowed, however, from the Newark champion. Incidentally, Sonny's car, newly painted and bearing the name of The News-Journal, which is sponsoring his appearance in the national races at Akron, Aug. 14, is on display in the lobby of the Madison theater where it will remain until Monday. The first of the week it will shipped to Akron.

MAYOR TELLS OF HIS FEAR OF EX-DEPUTY

Jersey Official Testifies For Prosecution; Barbara's New Boy Friend Also Called.

(By United Press)

SOUTH PARIS, Me. — Paul (Buddy) Dwyer's mother, Mrs. Jeane L. Dwyer, testified as a state witness today at the murder trial of former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll, who is accused of the crime for which her son is serving a life sentence.

Mrs. Dwyer was the sixth of 30 witnesses scheduled to testify for the prosecution.

Preceding her in the stand was Mayor Alexander Allen of North Arlington, N. J., where Dwyer was arrested last Oct. 16 at the wheel of an automobile whose tonneau and trunk contained the bodies of Dr. and Mrs. James G. Littlefield, elderly South Paris couple.

Mayor Tells Story.

Mayor Allen testified that he was at police headquarters at 10:30 a. m. on Oct. 16 when it was brought to his knowledge that Dwyer had made a confession which was being typed and which the youth had agreed to sign.

Then, the mayor said, he overheard Police Chief George Shippee tell Dwyer that the Maine officers were going to fly to New Jersey and take him back by plane.

"Dwyer wanted to know who was coming," the mayor testified, "and Chief Shippee said, 'I don't know. Why?' And Dwyer said, 'I hope it isn't Francis Carroll? He'll throw me out of the plane'."

It was learned from defense counsel today that the new boy friend of the defendant's 17-year-old daughter, comely Barbara Carroll, had been summoned as a defense witness. The name of the youth, who supplanted Dwyer in Barbara's affections, was not disclosed.

The state was to decide today whether to call Barbara herself to require her to help convict her father of murder.

If called, she will be asked if her father seduced her. It is Prosecutor Ralph D. Ingalls' theory that incest was the indirect motivation of the slayer of Dr. and Mrs. Littlefield.

Writer's Challenge to Sculptor of St. Francis Taken Up, $200 Posted

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Your correspondent has been taken up on his offer to sculp a better statue of St. Francis of Assisi than that which it is proposed to deface Christmas Tree Hill in San Francisco or forfeit $100 toward a fund to prevent the erection of [illegible] upside down pipe.

Mr. Butano, the author of the pipe design, writes that he has posted $100 with the San Francisco Press club. Your correspondent is sending $100 immediately to the barman of the same institution, and the contest is on, although certain minor particulars remain to be adjusted.

For one, it was not necessary for Mr. Butano to post $100. The proposition was not a wager but a public-spirited offer to start a fund to prevent an esthetic atrocity. This was plainly stated, but it seems only natural that a man who could spend a long time starving, life, time, work and appearance of St. Francis on [illegible] gamble in Art [illegible] with a figure of a [illegible] Lorn a cohen [illegible] point.

Outings are but momentary, and it should be considered that unless this fund prospers and the purpose be achieved, unborn generations of San Francisco children will return from outings feverish, fretful and colicky from glimpsing a stack 180 feet high afironting St. Francis.

The children's imagination will play with fearsome interpretations. Some will see it as a holdup victim standing in a barrel, and others as a man falling down a cistern.

Mr. Butano proposed to send a sculptor's mallet and chisel, adding that your correspondent probably needs no teaching in the use of the chisel. He is confused again. Your correspondent has some facility with the mallet, but it needs no saying that those who work on the art projects of the WPA use the chisel as though it grew in their hands.

TWO PASTORS TO RETURN SUNDAY

Rev. Braker, Rev. Saleste Back From Vacations; Guests to Speak At Two Churches.

Two Mansfield pastors will return Sunday after a month's vacation to occupy the pulpit of their church, while guest ministers will fill the pulpits at two other churches.

Returning are Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church.

Rev. Braker will speak on "Be Still and Know," during the 10:30 a. m. Baptist service. Music during the service will include the senior choir singing "Lo a Voice to Heaven Sounding," by Bortniansky, a duet, "I Will Magnify Thee, O Lord," sung by Mrs. Sherman Skaggs and Edna May Boswell, and three organ selections by Lawrence M. Frank, minister of music. Frank will play, "Largo" from "The New World Symphony," "Humoresque," and "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

Rev. Saleste will conduct an English service at 10 a. m., and a German service at 11:10 a. m. For the former he will speak on "A Secret of Strength," and at the German service on "Where Christ Fits Into Your Life."

Rev. Braker also will occupy the pulpit at the First Christian church during the unified service at 9 a. m., in the absence of the pastor, Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger. Rev. Woodrow Faulkner, student at the Evangelical Theological Seminary, Napierville, Ill., will speak at both the morning and evening services at the Main Street Evangelical church in place of Rev. C. L. Kern, pastor.

Especially appropriate now, is "Come Summer" by Virginia McCarty Bare. Older girls will enjoy it as the plot centers around Denise Owen and her determination to make a home for her three brothers and young sister.

When the story opens, Denise is in the hospital, training to be a nurse. Chris, Joan, Robin and Dick Owen are all living with their Aunt Carrie, and hating every minute of it. Denise decides to take all her small store of money and move the family up to their little farm in New Hampshire. Being city bred, farm life proves difficult but it also puts them on their mettle, as, to admit defeat means going back to live with Aunt Carrie.

The author must certainly have experienced many of the incidents in this book, and we wonder just how many girls would have the courage to solve their problems this way!

BANS FISHING AND HUNTING IN RESERVOIR AREA FOR ONE YEAR

On the recommendation of game and fish management agents of the Ohio Division of Conservation, the Charles Mill reservoir area will be closed to fishing and hunting for at least a year, directors of the Muskingum Conservancy district in New Philadelphia have announced.

Directors are making detailed studies and plans for the proper developments of the recreational advantages of the reservoir areas, and the action taken is on the advice of authorities in charge of the planning work, they said.

Closing of the area is the necessary first step in the development of a long-time wildlife program, the directors pointed out.

"Closing of the area to hunting will permit the growth of the game population by providing brood stock," the announcement said.

The surplus game can then be taken on a controlled shooting basis without danger of destroying the wildlife resources of the area. A year's ban against hunting also will permit establishment of food and cover patches which is expected to accellerate wildlife development.

Fish management agents reported that the fish population of the reservoir will increase rapidly because of good soil conditions and shallow water, providing no fishing is permitted until stock is established. The great number of fingerlings in the lake indicate prospects for excellent permanent fishing.

Agents of the state conservation division, in co-operation with the district, expect to complete an extensive waterfowl and fish planting program this year in the upper portion of the lake north of state route 30, which will be held as a sanctuary.

The Golden Text is: "The fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth" (Ephesians 5:9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson - Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Let not your prophets and your diviners, that be in the midst of you, deceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cause to be dreamed" (Jeremiah 29:8).

CALLS FOR BIDS

City Board Acts To Purchase Portable Air Compressor.

Acting to obtain equipment for use in connection with the Woodland water improvement, the city board of control today called for bids on a portable air compressor for the street department.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said that bids on the machine would be received at the office of the board until noon Aug. 19.

Specifications call for the delivery to the city of a compressor capable of driving two air hammers, mounted on wheels with rubber tires and driven by a gasoline engine.

Styert said that alternate bids will be accepted on various types of equipment. Council at its regular meeting Tuesday night authorized an appropriation of $2,000 to cover the cost of the equipment.

PLAYLOTS START NEW ACTIVITIES

Junior Kittenball League And Horseshoe Tournament For Men Get Under Way.

Although Mansfield playgrounds have only three weeks more to run for the present season, two new activities were started on the grounds during the past week, Al Fendrick, playground director, said.

The new activities are a junior kittenball league and a singles and doubles horseshoe tournament for men. The league is open to boys under 13 years of age.

The horseshoe tournament is being planned for men living in the vicinity of the different grounds. Registrations for those wishing to enter must be made to supervisors at the grounds.

The next big event planned for the playlots will be the annual pet show and parade which will be held in the downtown business section Friday, afternoon, Aug. 2, Judging of animale will be made in Central park.

Friday, Aug. 19, the playoff of all tournaments now being held will be staged to determine the champions of each ground. The playlots will close for the summer, Friday, Aug. 26. This year instead of holding one big field meet for all children at one ground, each playground will hold its own play day. Fendrick said this change is being made to keep the children at their own parks and in their own communities instead of taking them to some other part of the city.

Four Ballots for Mansfield Voters.

WHEN Mansfield voters go to their precinct polling places next Tuesday each will be handed four ballots—a large one and three small ones.

The voter asks for either a Democratic or a Republican party ballot, depending on political affiliation.

On this ballot, which is about 6 by 19 inches in size, appears the names of state, district and county candidates for nomination to various offices.

An X marked with a black lead pencil in the square in front of the name indicates the voter's preference.

Each of the three small ballots is headed "Questions or Issues Ballot," with a "For" or "Against" space provided for an X mark.

Voters who do not wish to express party preference by asking for either a Democratic or a Republican ticket are entitled to ask for and receive only the school bond ballot, or all three of the small "issues" ballots, without making any statement of party affiliation—as this is a special election on these issues, held on the same date as the regular primaries.

The ballot for voting on the school bond issue is slightly longer than the other two and has a single line at the top, "PROPOSED BOND ISSUE," with a statement of the purpose of "purchasing necessary land, erecting two new fireproof Junior High school buildings and alterations in and additions to several existing school buildings in the Mansfield City School District. . . . "

The other two small ballots are under the heading, "Proposed Increases In Tax Rates," and present the proposals of a 2-mill levy in Mansfield and a 1-mill levy in Madison township for emergency poor relief.

Both in the matter of nominations of party candidates for state, district and county offices, and in the importance of securing a fully representative expression of public attitude toward plans to make badly needed improvements in Mansfield's public school buildings, next Tuesday's primaries deserve attention by every eligible voter in this city.

When you go to the polls, vote as judgment and conscience dictate—BUT VOTE!

Normal Business Rise

LABOR, business and government seem to be agreed about one thing, which is good news in itself. The subject of their agreement is likewise good news. Spokesmen for these groups are the American Federation of Labor, the National City bank of New York and the federal department of commerce. All three says in recent statements that industrial trends are upward.

Employment is improving. Markets are more active. Consumer lines continue sustained activity. Steel orders grow slowly.

The needs of the country, says the National City bank, are asserting themselves again. It is not necessarily a boom, but the slowing down process had gone farther than warranted and the reaction is normal and justifies optimism.

Gambled Billions.

SCIENCE SERVICE estimates that the gambling bill in this country is seven billion dollars a year. Half the total goes to small stuff—slot machines, the numbers game, church and club raffles, bingo parties, pinball machines, and similar games of chance. There is also a vast amount of private gambling such as bridge games, dice and small personal bets on everything imaginable.

The strange thing about the huge gambling industry is that it does not waver even during depression. When times are bad people take a chance in the hope they may get something for nothing. When times are good they gamble for the excitement.

The tragedy is that so much of the "take" comes in very small sums—nickels and dimes—from people who cannot afford to spare even so little.

Little Boys Who Throw At Cars.

SOME boys, usually under the age of ten, think it's fun to throw missiles at passing automobiles.

They have no notion of hurting anyone—or causing an accident. In fact they probably think very little about it, except to follow a boyish urge to throw something.

The incident of a Mansfield woman sustaining an eye injury when struck by a mud ball thrown through the open window of a car by a boy playing along the street, supplies an example of just what can result from this too-common practice.

Don't blame the little boys who know no better—blame the parents who haven't told their children that they shouldn't do such things.

Germany's Financial Plight.

AMERICAN authorities say the break in German securities is a symptom of incurable disease, and financially and economically the reich is cracking.

The basic cause seems to be the pouring of vast wealth and work into armament, public works and "self-sufficiency" plans. These were financed by "I O U's" which are now coming home to roost. Companies taking them have had to discount them heavily and even sell their own stocks to buy raw materials for operation.

Hitler's government is costing more than one-third of the national income. All that American observers can foresee is "printing press money" again, and everybody knows what that leads to.

Some of the Democrats who are predicting the outcome of the primaries seem to be afraid they're right.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Often enough Washington simply skates over the surface of the struggle out in the bailiwicks between established industry and organized labor and gets only an occasional insight into deeper personal elements involved.

Such a glimpse was given before the senate civil liberties committee in a 10-minute debate between a somewhat diffident young minister from Youngstown, Ohio, and the heads of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, the principal industry of the town.

A majority of the spectators at these hearings on civil liberties are the so-called "young liberals," since the average Washingtonian, just like the average Atlantan or the average Down Easter, would prefer not to be bothered with thinking of labor matters. These young liberals, while labor-minded, are inclined to titter a bit flippantly when things connected with churches are mentioned.

Ranged around the table below Senator La Follette's raised desk were three individuals, Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube; William B. Gillies, vice president, a solid, florid-faced fellow, and young Rev. Orville C. Jones, one-time minister of the Youngstown church to which Purnell belonged.

* * *

Parting of Ways.

MR. JONES related that in 1935, when CIO was seeking a foothold in the steel industry, the ministers of Youngstown were invited to a dinner given by "Sheet and Tube." Everybody in Youngstown familiarly refers to the company as "Sheet and Tube." Well, at this banquet, he said, Mr. Gillies asked the ministers to keep their parishioners out of the CIO. Some of the ministers, dependent for church funds upon "Sheet and Tube" officials among their congregation, felt it was a virtual "command," Jones said.

He himself debated at the dinner with Mr. Gillies, and suggested that the whole industry would be better off with labor organized to bargain collectively. He seems almost to have been snuffed out at the banquet by Mr. Gillies' assertion that 30 years experience in steel gave him a better knowledge than the minister as to what was "good for the men."

Jones stated that his association with labor people began gradually to alienate from his congregation the officials of the company, including President Purnell. Even leading women of the church, he said, started injurious stories about him.

* * *

Sentiment: Both Sides.

WHAT do you say to these things?" was the effect of the questions directed by Senator LaFollette at Purnell and Gillies.

Both officials denied bringing pressure against Jones. There was tittering among the spectators when Purnell conceded he had withdrawn from the church both his person and his financial support. Evening after evening, he said with growing heat, the church, that he felt had been built for other purposes was made a meeting place for "known reds." The giggles increased. But they were stilled abruptly when Purnell, with a shade of fury in his tone, said:

"My father helped dig the cellar of that church. He has been a member of it for 60 years and is still a member."

Here was something of a different color. It was the reflection of a strong sentimental element that seldom is seen in Washington, even in momentary flashes. It made the labor issue something more than a street corner scuffle between pickets and company police.

The young minister seemed to respect the sentiment behind Purnell's reaction as "perfectly natural and simple." And yet, he said, such an attitude by officials "amounts to such effective coercion that the ministers of the city do not dare express an independent judgment."

Mr. Jones finally resigned from that pulpit and moved to Cleveland. To remain, he said, would have harmed the church.

Personal sentiments like those usually are smothered in Washington under the windy economics involved.

Latin American Policy Improved

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam shows first class judgment in having decided upon a state department "cultural division" in preference to a governmentally backed radio program of Yankee propaganda in Latin American.

The Latin Americans are very senstive. They are flattered by foreign interest in their various countries, but they resent foreign attempts to influence them unduly.

The United States did, for years, try to exert undue influence. We did it mighty clumsily, too—often forcibly, in fact. And it got us thoroughly disliked, if not outrightly hated.

The Pan American Union's system was all right. Its policy was one of inter-American acquaintanceship, study and neighborliness. Our stupid diplomacy, however, undid the Pan American Union's good work rather faster than the Union could accomplish anything.

* * *

AS IT WAS.

I went to the Argentine Republic in 1915 for a six-year stay, and I found my countrymen extremely unpopular on the southern continent. We still were unpopular when I left. How could it have been otherwise, considering the attitude of President Wilson and most of his predecessors toward these folk. If it was not actually bullying it was patronizing, to say the least. No independent nation likes to be treated in a school masterly way.

Our business also was gruff and unceremonious, and nowhere is politeness more imperatively needed than in that part of the world to maintain pleasant relations. It needs to be almost overdone, indeed.

The English were (and are) adepts at adapting themselves to such conditions.

For example, an English house in the Argentine generally is under the management of an Anglo-Argentine whose grandfather, coming out from London, began running it about 100 years ago. His son, presumably, was born in the Argentine—and his son's son (the current incumbent). Of course both were educated in England, to keep them English. Yet they are Argentines likewise.

Now the managers of our Argentine branches are changed possibly every two years. They have not time to learn the country or its language. What chance do they stand against these old-time Britons!

* * *

OTHER NATIONALITIES.

German and Italian house antedate us but not as far as the English.

The Italians have one advantage. They are Latins, like most of Latin America; therefore they are especially assimilable. But lately they have developed an Aryan complex, which is not likely to popularize them.

The Germans have had an advantage of their own. They try to produce stuff that Latin America has a taste for. We produce junk that suits us, and tell the Latin Americans to "take it or leave it."

But gradually we are offering Latin America what it desires, versus Germany.

Nor have we advanced any Aryan propaganda, as Germany has, and in which Italy now is following suit.

* * *

ENGLISH TO STAY.

We shall not displace England in Latin America.

But we may grab off Germany's and Italy's trade.

Germany and Italy have undertaken to propagandize Latin America too obviously and grossly. The Germans, for example, are accused by Brazilians of having sought to Nazi-ize Brazil — which has turned Brazil anti-Nazi with a vengeance.

Ditto Argentina and elsewhere against Italy.

* * *

"DO NOT OVERDO."

As I have had occasion to remark before, I handled Uncle Sam's publicity in the River Platte republics during the war.

But, believe me, I was careful not to overdo it.

I wrote the stuff, and censored out what I considered indiscreet dope from Washington.

It suited the Argentine papers. The local English papers spoke well of the stuff, too.

I never got any compliments from the German or Italian press, however.

A Letter to Mr. American Merchant.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEAR MR. AMERICAN MERCHANT:

We've been talking together considerable, over the years, haven't we—particularly during the period of the Great Lamentation. And growing right neighborly while we did so. Some of my more radical friends, of course, don't admire you so much . . . might even like to see you shot at sunrise. But, personally, I think you're great guys, and I'm firmly convinced we'd all have a tough time if you folded. The dear old days when we swapped wampum for buffalo jerkie may look lovely on paper, but when it comes to really give me a nice modern mart every time.

So, I repeat, you have my note. And yet...sometimes I wonder if you aren't making things a little harder for yourselves—and the rest of us—than need be.

F'instance—take a look at the letter I've just received from a young San Franciscan who, for obvious reasons, asks me to sign his initials only.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Last week I sought work from the Personnel Manager of a prominent business concern which employs thousands of men all over the country. I wasn't particularly surprised when he said he didn't need me but I was frankly amazed at his pessimistic reply to my query where I might find employment. 'Young man,' he said, 'I don't believe there's a position to be had in this city. Business is terrible!'

"Made bold by my own necessity I told him I dare not accept that attitude or I'd never get a job—and I wagered I'd come back in a week to tell him where I was working. I am pleased to state that within four days I found three temporary jobs and just yesterday secured a permanent position in an insurance company. Tomorrow I'm going back to that Manager's office and make good my wager.

"Are all our business men so pessimistic and faint-hearted, Miss Robinson? Is that the way for them to give the younger generation a hand or to keep up their own confidence?"

R. R. R.,

San Francisco, Calif.

There's one story, Mr. Merchant. Here's another, also true, concerning a friend of mine — likewise a writer. The beginning of the depression found him on his mountain ranch recuperating from a long illness. He had a good salary but—due to many responsibilities—no reserve. Writing, at best, is a chancey job. With sickness added, the prospect was anything but bright.

To make things worse, his mountain neighbors were in a desperate plight. Depression meant anxiety to him but to them it would probably mean actual starvation—ragged children, sick wives lacking medical attention. It was going to be pretty horrible watching that. So my friend thought things over.

And the next day he hired six men to build a new fence line.

That was six years ago. Since that time my friend has sunk every dollar he has earned, outside his bare necessities into the lives and fortunes of his hard-hit neighbors. He didn't do it as a good deed...there was no element of sacrifice in it. It was simply his notion of taking a sporting chance. He was determined that the depression shouldn't get him down . . . shouldn't wipe out his courage and faith as it was doing to so many of his friends. He might come out of it busted—but if he saved his fighting morale . . .

It did. He was right about the money part, of course. He hasn't a nickel saved—but he's had a swell time. While others have been wrapped in crepe all these years, he's had the joy and thrill of a perpetual adventure.

Now that's what I call good business. And it seems to me that if I had any kind of a store, even if I couldn't move the goods off my shelves, I'd do a little trading in human nature...if only to keep the grin on my face!

Get me, partner?

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

JAPAN feared, at the 20th century's dawn, that Korea was "a dagger pointed at her heart," fought Russia, won, and later annexed Korea. Northwest of Korea is the good earth, rich in coal, known as Manchoukuo, wrested from China by Japan in 1931, estimated to be thrice the size of California.

Manchoukuo juts between Korea and Siberia. It's difficult to say and dangerous to prove just where Korea, Manchoukuo and Siberia meet. There are hills thereabouts and bullets have whined through them for nearly a month.

That's hardly news. For years, Japanese and Russian frontiersmen have fought, off and on, here and there, about Asiatic boundaries.

Last Monday—24 anniversary of Germany's declaration of war against Russia that started the World war—Japan reported "a terrible fight" near Changkufeng. Soon warplanes were said to have been used. By Tuesday, tanks and heavy artillery allegedly had gone into action. Hundreds of casualties were rumored. By Wednesday, dispatches indicated hundreds of thousands of men were involved. Cannonading could be heard for miles. By Thursday, a vast area had been "blacked out," and reinforcements were believed to be moving toward the hot spot.

Was this going to be another undeclared war? Experts dodged the question. Guessers said Russia (China's friend) might be trying to distract Japan from the conflict in China, that Japan (Germany's pal) might be trying to distract Russia from the confusion in Czechoslovakia, that both sides' troops in Manchoukuo and—or Siberia might be merely finding something to do to avoid being transferred to China, etc., etc.

Politics

The People Choose.

From Kansas to Virginia, this was election week. Primaries came Tuesday in Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia and Virginia; Thursday in Tennessee, Saturday in Kentucky.

Senatorial Contests.

Missouri renominated Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, who fought the New Deal's Supreme Court bill.

To oppose Clark this fall, Missouri Republicans chose ex-Gov. Henry S. Caulfield.

Kansas Democrats renominated Sen. George McGill, a Roosevelt follower, and Gov. Walter A. Huxman. Kansas Republicans chose ex-Gov. Clyde M. Reed, caustic critic of the New Deal, to run against McGill, and St. Sen. Payne H. Ratner, who was backed by many of Alf M. Landon's friends, for the gubernatorial race this fall.

Tennessee voted on both senatorial and gubernatorial candidates after a campaign so bitter that senate investigators' attention had been attracted and use of troops in Memphis had been threatened by Gov. Gordon Browning.

Sen. George L. Berry and Gov. Browning were defeated for renomination. Bushy-browed, ex-Congressman E. H. Crump, Democratic national committeeman, often called the political boss of Memphis, backed A. Tom Stewart in a race against Berry, and Prentice Cooper against Browning. Sen. Kenneth McKellar was allied with Crump.

Kentucky, voting today, was foremost in many politicians' minds. There, Gov. Albert Benjamin Chandler, who (like W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas) provides music as well as oratory for the populace, was running against President Roosevelt's robust friend, Alben W. Barkley, for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Solons Vs. Jury.

Pennsylvania's legislature, in special session last week, passed measures to halt a grand-jury probe of political corruption charges against Gov. George H. Earle and to substitute a legislative inquiry.

This week the judge chosen to sit in the investigation by the Pennsylvania supreme court decided the legislature could not suspend the grand-jury inquiry, impounded the evidence, and ordered persons subpoenaed by the jury not to testify before a legislative committee.

The jury was scheduled to meet next week; legislators insisted on going ahead with their inquiry this week.

* * *

Republican Thinkers.

A little streamlined elephant, tagged "Let's GOPlaces," was given to GOP Chairman Hamilton this week by members of the party's policy squad. Headed by Glenn Frank, the thinkers then settled down in Chicago to prepare " an intelligent and workable program to take the place of parts of the New Deal program which are unworkable." Their work, Frank added, will not be finished until next year.

People

Dewey Vs. Tammany.

Thomas Edmund Dewey, of Owosso, Mich., moved to New York 15 years ago to take singing lessons. He stayed to study law. Three years ago Gov. Lehman made him special prosecutor to bust New York rackets. He brought 73 alleged racketeers to trial and got 72 convicted.

Last fall, campaigning for district attorney, Dewey said political influence was protecting criminals. He won, the first Republican to take the job away from Tammany hall since 1915. Then, this spring, he got James J. Hines, a Tammany leader, indicted as a front man for the late Dutch Schultz's $100,000,000-a-year numbers racket.

And this week, as a preliminary to a trial of Hines, he named a judge, an ex-judge and his predecessor as district attorney — all Tammany men—as officials "influenced" by the numbers racket. The ex-judge is dead, and the other two denied the allegation.

Then Dewey was ordered to show cause why he should be allowed to offer evidence on this point during Hines's trial—the defense having contended that Dewey had not offered a full bill of particulars.

Indicted with Hines was "Dixie" Davis, Schultz's mouthpiece and alleged brains of the racket syndicate. This week Davis pleaded guilty — after it came out that Dewey detectives had been escorting him from jail to visit his show-girl sweetheart. Davis will be the state's star witness, Dewey said.

* * *

Pope and Duce.

Fascist profs decided three weeks ago that Italians were Aryans. And Pope Pius, viewing mankind as "one single great universal human race," wondered last week-end "why in the world Italy unfortunately felt the need to imitate Germany."

Il Duce then denied he was an imitator and declared Italy would 'march straight ahead" on the race question. This week the government announced all foreign Jews would be barred from Italian schools. And more drastic steps were expected to follow.

* * *

California Bound.

Douglas (East Is West) Corrigan was forbidden to fly for five days this week. He passed the time on the S. S. Manhattan, en route to California via New York, assured of cheers galore for doing the thing (flying to Ireland without permission) for which he was being officially and politely punished.

Thousands of Irishmen, including many Corrigans, met him in a great demonstration.

At Home

PWA Business Boom.

PWA by this week had okayed projects totalling more than $1,000,000,000 as part of its new program.

Included was Pennsylvania's plan for an all-weather, four-lane, Pittsburgh - Harrisburg toll road along an unused railway roadbed, for which PWA offered a $26,000,000 grant and RFC offered to loan $32,000,000.

This fall a committee of noted engineers will report to PWA on Chicago's proposed $31,840,000 subway.

And Administrator Ickes, before leaving for Alaska, warned cities they must apply pronto if they are to share PWA's remaining funds.

Labor

Governor Vs. NLRB.

In Newton, Ia., July 18, NLRB began hearing CIO's complaint against the strike-closed Maytag Washing Machine Co. On July 20, Iowa's Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel declared martial law. Calling the hearing a "disturbing element," possibly delaying settlement of the strike, he ordered it halted last week-end.

But NLRB ordered the hearing resumed this week—in the federal courthouse at Des Monies. The governor then decided not to interfere — and simultaneously ordered his troops to let the Maytag plant re-open.

* * *

Strike's Cost.

The 1937 "little steel" strike cost Ohio, a half-dozen communities, the Pennsylvania railroad and two steel companies more than $4,000,000, a senate civil liberties committee investigator has estimated.

"There is no doubt . . . that the rights to organize for collective bargaining have been frustrated." Chairman LaFollette declared, as the steel-strike probe continued this week, and he predicted that the committee would recommend strengthening of the labor law.

BOARD RECITES FACTS ON BONDS

Reminds Voters U. S. Will Pay $44,000 of Proposed $98,000 Issue.

GALION — Stressing the fact that Galion needs a new East school building, the board of education in an article today point out the following facts.

The cost of the proposed East school building will be $98,182. Of this total amount, the federal government has granted to the city of Galion $44,182 or the equivalent of 45 per cent. This project necessitates a bond issue of $54,000 to be passed by the voters of Galion at the Aug. 9 primaries. This $54,000 is the difference between the grant and the total cost of the building.

The bonds for this project will run for a period of 10 years. They will be paid off at the rate of $5,400 per year plus interest. The interest rate cannot by law be more than 4 per cent, but the board of education expects to sell these bonds at a lower rate.

The county auditor has certified to the board of education that the bond issue of $54,000 will necessitate an average of only .7 of a mill over this period of 10 years. The financial records show that this will not be a decided increase because by 1940 the levy for the present bonded indebtedness will decrease materially.

If the people of Galion are to secure an elementary building at approximately one-half the actual cost, it will be necessary that 65 per cent of the people vote favorably.

SUES ELECTION BOARD IN FIGHT TO CAST BALLOT

CCC Enrollee Claims County as Home, Asks Injunction Against Vote Order.

ASHLAND— A case without prescedent in Ashland county, in which a resident of the county seeks to have common pleas court issue an injunction against the election board to assure him the right to vote in the coming primaries has been filed here.

The plaintiff, John Miehs, a CCC clerk at the Camp Mohican in Hanover township, in his petition names Frank Kunkel, chairman of the county board of elections, and F. M. Scarborough, Louise DeVoe and Louise Welsh, other members of the board as the defendants.

Claims County As Home.

A clerk of the camp, and a resident of Ashland county since Oct. 28, 1935, Miehs claims he came to this county to make his home, and that outside of the domicile which he has adopted inside the camp, there is no other place in the United States which he can rightfully call "home."

He claims in his petition that the county board of election, through Kunkel, has issued an order prohibiting any person employed by the CCC camp from voting in Ashland county.

It is also claimed that the board, through its chairman, will give orders to the presiding judges of voting precincts in Hanover township on Aug. 6 to prohibit any employes of the CCC camp from voting in the coming primary.

Mieh's petition seeks to have the court countermand this order.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

OLD HICKORY

WE HAVE a large, old shagbark hickory tree, about the center of a 16-acre field. Its shade is marvelous. I feel more comfortable, while sitting beneath those spreading branches, than in an air-conditioned room.

The leaves are dark, hardy green, and do not wither, even in these hot, dry, August days. The top soil is parched and hard; the stems of grass and weeds have folded up their leaves and stand gaunt and bare; but this giant tree has tapped a reservoir of moisture that surface plants have never known.

When I look upon its noble symmetry, the topmost branches climing skyward, the lower ones grown outward, bearing on their terminals, next year's buds and this season's crop of leaves and fruit, I marvel at its beauty and its usefulness.

Yet, if I could see beneath the soil, I would find a splendid system of roots, branching down and outward in graceful curves, just like the top. Perhaps the farthest root would reach a depth greater than the top is high, the lateral system wider than the spreading branches.

Everyday, in hottest sunshine and summer wind, that hickory tree takes from the earth no less than 150 gallons of water, and the sun and wind evaporate it from the thousands of openings in each leaf. With slight figuring, one can estimate that the tree carries 1,250 pounds of water to an average height of 30 feet.

When I take shelter there from the sun, I think about this miracle of power, and wonder how it happens. It makes me feel that trees, wherever found, as well as common grass and flowers, are the most uncommon things we have about us.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and be cautious if you go into Pennsylvania, where speed laws are enforced.

The heat of the weather, coupled with the heat of the campaign, has made this an uncomfortably torrid week.

According to latest decision Corrigan is to be sent back to California by train this time—with dependence placed in the engineer.

Four Ballots for Mansfield Voters.

WHEN Mansfield voters go to their precinct polling places next Tuesday each will be handed four ballots—a large one and three small ones.

The voter asks for either a Democratic or a Republican party ballot, depending on political affiliation.

On this ballot, which is about 6 by 19 inches in size, appears the names of state, district and county candidates for nomination to various offices.

An X marked with a black lead pencil in the square in front of the name indicates the voter's preference.

Each of the three small ballots is headed "Questions or Issues Ballot," with a "For" or "Against" space provided for an X mark.

Voters who do not wish to express party preference by asking for either a Democratic or a Republican ticket are entitled to ask for and receive only the school bond ballot, or all three of the small "issues" ballots, without making any statement of party affiliation—as this is a special election on these issues, held on the same date as the regular primaries.

The ballot for voting on the school bond issue is slightly longer than the other two and has a single line at the top, "PROPOSED BOND ISSUE," with a statement of the purpose of "purchasing necessary land, erecting two new fireproof Junior High school buildings and alterations in and additions to several existing school buildings in the Mansfield City School District. . . . "

The other two small ballots are under the heading, "Proposed Increases In Tax Rates," and present the proposals of a 2-mill levy in Mansfield and a 1-mill levy in Madison township for emergency poor relief.

Both in the matter of nominations of party candidates for state, district and county offices, and in the importance of securing a fully representative expression of public attitude toward plans to make badly needed improvements in Mansfield's public school buildings, next Tuesday's primaries deserve attention by every eligible voter in this city.

When you go to the polls, vote as judgment and conscience dictate—BUT VOTE!

Normal Business Rise

LABOR, business and government seem to be agreed about one thing, which is good news in itself. The subject of their agreement is likewise good news. Spokesmen for these groups are the American Federation of Labor, the National City bank of New York and the federal department of commerce. All three says in recent statements that industrial trends are upward.

Employment is improving. Markets are more active. Consumer lines continue sustained activity. Steel orders grow slowly.

The needs of the country, says the National City bank, are asserting themselves again. It is not necessarily a boom, but the slowing down process had gone farther than warranted and the reaction is normal and justifies optimism.

Gambled Billions.

SCIENCE SERVICE estimates that the gambling bill in this country is seven billion dollars a year. Half the total goes to small stuff—slot machines, the numbers game, church and club raffles, bingo parties, pinball machines, and similar games of chance. There is also a vast amount of private gambling such as bridge games, dice and small personal bets on everything imaginable.

The strange thing about the huge gambling industry is that it does not waver even during depression. When times are bad people take a chance in the hope they may get something for nothing. When times are good they gamble for the excitement.

The tragedy is that so much of the "take" comes in very small sums—nickels and dimes—from people who cannot afford to spare even so little.

Little Boys Who Throw At Cars.

They have no notion of hurting anyone—or causing an accident. In fact they probably think very little about it, except to follow a boyish urge to throw something.

The incident of a Mansfield woman sustaining an eye injury when struck by a mud ball thrown through the open window of a car by a boy playing along the street, supplies an example of just what can result from this too-common practice.

Don't blame the little boys who know no better—blame the parents who haven't told their children that they shouldn't do such things.

Germany's Financial Plight.

AMERICAN authorities say the break in German securities is a symptom of incurable disease, and financially and economically the reich is cracking.

The basic cause seems to be the pouring of vast wealth and work into armament, public works and "self-sufficiency" plans. These were financed by "I O U's" which are now coming home to roost. Companies taking them have had to discount them heavily and even sell their own stocks to buy raw materials for operation.

Hitler's government is costing more than one-third of the national income. All that American observers can foresee is "printing press money" again, and everybody knows what that leads to.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Often enough Washington simply skates over the surface of the struggle out in the bailiwicks between established industry and organized labor and gets only an occasional insight into deeper personal elements involved.

Such a glimpse was given before the senate civil liberties committee in a 10-minute debate between a somewhat diffident young minister from Youngstown, Ohio, and the heads of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, the principal industry of the town.

A majority of the spectators at these hearings on civil liberties are the so-called "young liberals," since the average Washingtonian, just like the average Atlantan or the average Down Easter, would prefer not to be bothered with thinking of labor matters. These young liberals, while labor-minded, are inclined to titter a bit flippantly when things connected with churches are mentioned.

Ranged around the table below Senator La Follette's raised desk were three individuals, Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube; William B. Gillies, vice president, a solid, florid-faced fellow, and young Rev. Orville C. Jones, one-time minister of the Youngstown church to which Purnell belonged.

* * *

Parting of Ways.

MR. JONES related that in 1935, when CIO was seeking a foothold in the steel industry, the ministers of Youngstown were invited to a dinner given by "Sheet and Tube." Everybody in Youngstown familiarly refers to the company as "Sheet and Tube." Well, at this banquet, he said, Mr. Gillies asked the ministers to keep their parishioners out of the CIO. Some of the ministers, dependent for church funds upon "Sheet and Tube" officials among their congregation, felt it was a virtual "command," Jones said.

He himself debated at the dinner with Mr. Gillies, and suggested that the whole industry would be better off with labor organized to bargain collectively. He seems almost to have been snuffed out at the banquet by Mr. Gillies' assertion that 30 years experience in steel gave him a better knowledge than the minister as to what was "good for the men."

Jones stated that his association with labor people began gradually to alienate from his congregation the officials of the company, including President Purnell. Even leading women of the church, he said, started injurious stories about him.

* * *

Sentiment: Both Sides.

WHAT do you say to these things?" was the effect of the questions directed by Senator LaFollette at Purnell and Gillies.

Both officials denied bringing pressure against Jones. There was tittering among the spectators when Purnell conceded he had withdrawn from the church both his person and his financial support. Evening after evening, he said with growing heat, the church, that he felt had been built for other purposes was made a meeting place for "known reds." The giggles increased. But they were stilled abruptly when Purnell, with a shade of fury in his tone, said:

"My father helped dig the cellar of that church. He has been a member of it for 60 years and is still a member."

Here was something of a different color. It was the reflection of a strong sentimental element that seldom is seen in Washington, even in momentary flashes. It made the labor issue something more than a street corner scuffle between pickets and company police.

The young minister seemed to respect the sentiment behind Purnell's reaction as "perfectly natural and simple." And yet, he said, such an attitude by officials "amounts to such effective coercion that the ministers of the city do not dare express an independent judgment."

Mr. Jones finally resigned from that pulpit and moved to Cleveland. To remain, he said, would have harmed the church.

Personal sentiments like those usually are smothered in Washington under the windy economics involved.

Latin American Policy Improved

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam shows first class judgment in having decided upon a state department "cultural division" in preference to a governmentally backed radio program of Yankee propaganda in Latin American.

The Latin Americans are very senstive. They are flattered by foreign interest in their various countries, but they resent foreign attempts to influence them unduly.

The United States did, for years, try to exert undue influence. We did it mighty clumsily, too—often forcibly, in fact. And it got us thoroughly disliked, if not outrightly hated.

The Pan American Union's system was all right. Its policy was one of inter-American acquaintanceship, study and neighborliness. Our stupid diplomacy, however, undid the Pan American Union's good work rather faster than the Union could accomplish anything.

* * *

AS IT WAS.

I went to the Argentine Republic in 1915 for a six-year stay, and I found my countrymen extremely unpopular on the southern continent. We still were unpopular when I left. How could it have been otherwise, considering the attitude of President Wilson and most of his predecessors toward these folk. If it was not actually bullying it was patronizing, to say the least. No independent nation likes to be treated in a school masterly way.

Our business also was gruff and unceremonious, and nowhere is politeness more imperatively needed than in that part of the world to maintain pleasant relations. It needs to be almost overdone, indeed.

The English were (and are) adepts at adapting themselves to such conditions.

For example, an English house in the Argentine generally is under the management of an Anglo-Argentine whose grandfather, coming out from London, began running it about 100 years ago. His son, presumably, was born in the Argentine—and his son's son (the current incumbent). Of course both were educated in England, to keep them English. Yet they are Argentines likewise.

Now the managers of our Argentine branches are changed possibly every two years. They have not time to learn the country or its language. What chance do they stand against these old-time Britons!

* * *

OTHER NATIONALITIES.

German and Italian house antedate us but not as far as the English.

The Italians have one advantage. They are Latins, like most of Latin America; therefore they are especially assimilable. But lately they have developed an Aryan complex, which is not likely to popularize them.

The Germans have had an advantage of their own. They try to produce stuff that Latin America has a taste for. We produce junk that suits us, and tell the Latin Americans to "take it or leave it."

But gradually we are offering Latin America what it desires, versus Germany.

Nor have we advanced any Aryan propaganda, as Germany has, and in which Italy now is following suit.

* * *

ENGLISH TO STAY.

But we may grab off Germany's and Italy's trade.

Germany and Italy have undertaken to propagandize Latin America too obviously and grossly. The Germans, for example, are accused by Brazilians of having sought to Nazi-ize Brazil — which has turned Brazil anti-Nazi with a vengeance.

Ditto Argentina and elsewhere against Italy.

* * *

"DO NOT OVERDO."

As I have had occasion to remark before, I handled Uncle Sam's publicity in the River Platte republics during the war.

But, believe me, I was careful not to overdo it.

I wrote the stuff, and censored out what I considered indiscreet dope from Washington.

It suited the Argentine papers. The local English papers spoke well of the stuff, too.

I never got any compliments from the German or Italian press, however.

Listen, World!

A Letter to Mr. American Merchant.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEAR MR. AMERICAN MERCHANT:

We've been talking together considerable, over the years, haven't we—particularly during the period of the Great Lamentation. And growing right neighborly while we did so. Some of my more radical friends, of course, don't admire you so much . . . might even like to see you shot at sunrise. But, personally, I think you're great guys, and I'm firmly convinced we'd all have a tough time if you folded. The dear old days when we swapped wampum for buffalo jerkie may look lovely on paper, but when it comes to really give me a nice modern mart every time.

So, I repeat, you have my note. And yet...sometimes I wonder if you aren't making things a little harder for yourselves—and the rest of us—than need be.

F'instance—take a look at the letter I've just received from a young San Franciscan who, for obvious reasons, asks me to sign his initials only.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Last week I sought work from the Personnel Manager of a prominent business concern which employs thousands of men all over the country. I wasn't particularly surprised when he said he didn't need me but I was frankly amazed at his pessimistic reply to my query where I might find employment. 'Young man,' he said, 'I don't believe there's a position to be had in this city. Business is terrible!'

"Made bold by my own necessity I told him I dare not accept that attitude or I'd never get a job—and I wagered I'd come back in a week to tell him where I was working. I am pleased to state that within four days I found three temporary jobs and just yesterday secured a permanent position in an insurance company. Tomorrow I'm going back to that Manager's office and make good my wager.

"Are all our business men so pessimistic and faint-hearted, Miss Robinson? Is that the way for them to give the younger generation a hand or to keep up their own confidence?"

R. R. R.,

San Francisco, Calif.

There's one story, Mr. Merchant. Here's another, also true, concerning a friend of mine — likewise a writer. The beginning of the depression found him on his mountain ranch recuperating from a long illness. He had a good salary but—due to many responsibilities—no reserve. Writing, at best, is a chancey job. With sickness added, the prospect was anything but bright.

To make things worse, his mountain neighbors were in a desperate plight. Depression meant anxiety to him but to them it would probably mean actual starvation—ragged children, sick wives lacking medical attention. It was going to be pretty horrible watching that. So my friend thought things over.

And the next day he hired six men to build a new fence line.

That was six years ago. Since that time my friend has sunk every dollar he has earned, outside his bare necessities into the lives and fortunes of his hard-hit neighbors. He didn't do it as a good deed...there was no element of sacrifice in it. It was simply his notion of taking a sporting chance. He was determined that the depression shouldn't get him down . . . . shouldn't wipe out his courage and faith as it was doing to so many of his friends. He might come out of it busted—but if he saved his fighting morale . . .

It did. He was right about the money part, of course. He hasn't a nickel saved—but he's had a swell time. While others have been wrapped in crepe all these years, he's had the joy and thrill of a perpetual adventure.

Now that's what I call good business. And it seems to me that if I had any kind of a store, even if I couldn't move the goods off my shelves, I'd do a little trading in human nature...if only to keep the grin on my face!

Get me, partner?

Elsie.

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

JAPAN feared, at the 20th century's dawn, that Korea was "a dagger pointed at her heart," fought Russia, won, and later annexed Korea. Northwest of Korea is the good earth, rich in coal, known as Manchoukuo, wrested from China by Japan in 1931, estimated to be thrice the size of California.

Manchoukuo juts between Korea and Siberia. It's difficult to say and dangerous to prove just where Korea, Manchoukuo and Siberia meet. There are hills thereabouts and bullets have whined through them for nearly a month.

That's hardly news. For years, Japanese and Russian frontiersmen have fought, off and on, here and there, about Asiatic boundaries.

Last Monday—24 anniversary of Germany's declaration of war against Russia that started the World war—Japan reported "a terrible fight" near Changkufeng. Soon warplanes were said to have been used. By Tuesday, tanks and heavy artillery allegedly had gone into action. Hundreds of casualties were rumored. By Wednesday, dispatches indicated hundreds of thousands of men were involved. Cannonading could be heard for miles. By Thursday, a vast area had been "blacked out," and reinforcements were believed to be moving toward the hot spot.

Was this going to be another undeclared war? Experts dodged the question. Guessers said Russia (China's friend) might be trying to distract Japan from the conflict in China, that Japan (Germany's pal) might be trying to distract Russia from the confusion in Czechoslovakia, that both sides' troops in Manchoukuo and—or Siberia might be merely finding something to do to avoid being transferred to China, etc., etc.

QUOTES

George Bernard Shaw, in "Geneva," his new play: "Some of the greatest men have hated the human race; even God would have destroyed it but for Noah."

Leroy Prinz. Hollywood dance director, reporting on a survey of the college beauty-queen situation: "Most of the coiffures and makeup used by the girls were the kind you might expect at a church social in a small farm town."

Politics

The People Choose.

From Kansas to Virginia, this was election week. Primaries came Tuesday in Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia and Virginia; Thursday in Tennessee, Saturday in Kentucky.

Senatorial Contests.

Missouri renominated Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, who fought the New Deal's Supreme Court bill.

Kansas Democrats renominated Sen. George McGill, a Roosevelt follower, and Gov. Walter A. Huxman. Kansas Republicans chose ex-Gov. Clyde M. Reed, caustic critic of the New Deal, to run against McGill, and St. Sen. Payne H. Ratner, who was backed by many of Alf M. Landon's friends, for the gubernatorial race this fall.

Tennessee voted on both senatorial and gubernatorial candidates after a campaign so bitter that senate investigators' attention had been attracted and use of troops in Memphis had been threatened by Gov. Gordon Browning.

Sen. George L. Berry and Gov. Browning were defeated for renomination. Bushy-browed, ex-Congressman E. H. Crump, Democratic national committeeman, often called the political boss of Memphis, backed A. Tom Stewart in a race against Berry, and Prentice Cooper against Browning. Sen. Kenneth McKellar was allied with Crump.

Kentucky, voting today, was foremost in many politicians' minds. There, Gov. Albert Benjamin Chandler, who (like W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas) provides music as well as oratory for the populace, was running against President Roosevelt's robust friend, Alben W. Barkley, for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

* * *

Solons Vs. Jury.

Pennsylvania's legislature, in special session last week, passed measures to halt a grand-jury probe of political corruption charges against Gov. George H. Earle and to substitute a legislative inquiry.

This week the judge chosen to sit in the investigation by the Pennsylvania supreme court decided the legislature could not suspend the grand-jury inquiry, impounded the evidence, and ordered persons subpoenaed by the jury not to testify before a legislative committee.

The jury was scheduled to meet next week; legislators insisted on going ahead with their inquiry this week.

* * *

Republican Thinkers.

A little streamlined elephant, tagged "Let's GOPlaces," was given to GOP Chairman Hamilton this week by members of the party's policy squad. Headed by Glenn Frank, the thinkers then settled down in Chicago to prepare " an intelligent and workable program to take the place of parts of the New Deal program which are unworkable." Their work, Frank added, will not be finished until next year.

People

Dewey Vs. Tammany.

Thomas Edmund Dewey, of Owosso, Mich., moved to New York 15 years ago to take singing lessons. He stayed to study law. Three years ago Gov. Lehman made him special prosecutor to bust New York rackets. He brought 73 alleged racketeers to trial and got 72 convicted.

Last fall, campaigning for district attorney, Dewey said political influence was protecting criminals. He won, the first Republican to take the job away from Tammany hall since 1915. Then, this spring, he got James J. Hines, a Tammany leader, indicted as a front man for the late Dutch Schultz's $100,000,000-a-year numbers racket.

And this week, as a preliminary to a trial of Hines, he named a judge, an ex-judge and his predecessor as district attorney — all Tammany men—as officials "influenced" by the numbers racket. The ex-judge is dead, and the other two denied the allegation.

Then Dewey was ordered to show cause why he should be allowed to offer evidence on this point during Hines's trial—the defense having contended that Dewey had not offered a full bill of particulars.

Indicted with Hines was "Dixie" Davis, Schultz's mouthpiece and alleged brains of the racket syndicate. This week Davis pleaded guilty — after it came out that Dewey detectives had been escorting him from jail to visit his show-girl sweetheart. Davis will be the state's star witness, Dewey said.

* * *

Pope and Duce.

Fascist profs decided three weeks ago that Italians were Aryans. And Pope Pius, viewing mankind as "one single great universal human race," wondered last week-end "why in the world Italy unfortunately felt the need to imitate Germany."

Il Duce then denied he was an imitator and declared Italy would 'march straight ahead" on the race question. This week the government announced all foreign Jews would be barred from Italian schools. And more drastic steps were expected to follow.

* * *

California Bound.

Douglas (East Is West) Corrigan was forbidden to fly for five days this week. He passed the time on the S. S. Manhattan, en route to California via New York, assured of cheers galore for doing the thing (flying to Ireland without permission) for which he was being officially and politely punished.

Thousands of Irishmen, including many Corrigans, met him in a great demonstration.

At Home

PWA Business Boom.

PWA by this week had okayed projects totalling more than $1,000,000,000 as part of its new program.

Included was Pennsylvania's plan for an all-weather, four-lane, Pittsburgh - Harrisburg toll road along an unused railway roadbed, for which PWA offered a $26,000,000 grant and RFC offered to loan $32,000,000.

This fall a committee of noted engineers will report to PWA on Chicago's proposed $31,840,000 subway.

And Administrator Ickes, before leaving for Alaska, warned cities they must apply pronto if they are to share PWA's remaining funds.

Labor

Governor Vs. NLRB.

In Newton, Ia., July 18, NLRB began hearing CIO's complaint against the strike-closed Maytag Washing Machine Co. On July 20, Iowa's Gov. Nelson G. Kraschel declared martial law. "Calling the hearing a "disturbing element," possibly delaying settlement of the strike, he ordered it halted last week-end.

But NLRB ordered the hearing resumed this week—in the federal courthouse at Des Monies. The governor then decided not to interfere — and simultaneously ordered his troops to let the Maytag plant re-open.

* * *

Strike's Cost.

The 1937 "little steel" strike cost Ohio, a half-dozen communities, the Pennsylvania railroad and two steel companies more than $4,000,000, a senate civil liberties committee investigator has estimated.

"There is no doubt . . . that the rights to organize for collective bargaining have been frustrated," Chairman LaFollette declared, as the steel-strike probe continued this week, and he predicted that the committee would recommend strengthening of the labor law.

In Short
